RESOLUTION NO. 156-87 Re: BOARD AGENDA - MARCH 10, 1987

On recommendation of the superintendent and on motion of Mrs. DiFonzo seconded by Dr. Cronin, the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

RESOLVED, That the Board of Education adopt its agenda for March 10, 1987.

Re: PRESENTATION OF CERTIFICATES OF RECOGNITION

Mrs. Praisner read the following statement:

"On January 29, 1987, Mr. Ralph Hardgrove, a substitute bus driver, while transporting 18 students on Bus 327 to Glenallan Elementary School, suffered an apparent heart attack and lost control of the bus, causing it to cross into the median strip on Randolph Road and strike a tree. Tom House, a junior student at Kennedy High School, was the first person to arrive on the scene of the accident while enroute to his part-time job with the Wheaton Fire Department. Tom immediately directed one of the Glenallan students, Ricky Lavern, to open the door and to get help. Serena Sullivan and Katie Hill, the school patrols present on the bus, evacuated the remaining students through the rear door and assisted them in crossing Randolph Road. Meanwhile Tom and Montgomery County Public Schools' repairmen, Mr. Samuel Wade and Mr. Alvin Mills, who arrived on the scene next, removed Mr. Hardgrove from the bus. Tom began to administer CPR until Mrs. Sarah A. Ingram, a registered nurse and Glenallan parent, arrived to assist with the CPR. Emergency medical assistance arrived minutes later because of the prompt action of Ricky in getting to Glenallan and reporting the accident to school staff.

"It is ironic that the emergency bus evacuation procedures used by the students under the direction of school safety patrols, Serena and Katie, were taught to them earlier this year by Mr. Hardgrove.

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Hardgrove was pronounced dead at Holy Cross Hospital. However, the persons who acted immediately following the accident deserve to be recognized."

Mrs. Praisner presented Certificates of Recognition for the Ability and Willingness to Respond in an Emergency Situation to:

  Mr. Tom House, Kennedy High School student
  Mr. Ricky Lavern, Glenallan student
  Miss Serena Sullivan and Miss Katie Hall, Glenallan safety patrols
  Mr. Samuel Wade and Mr. Alvin Mills, MCPS Repairmen
  Mrs. Sarah A. Ingram, Glenallan parent

*Mr. Steinberg joined the meeting at this time. Mrs. Slye joined the meeting later in the day.

Re:  A MOTION BY MR. EWING ON SB 770 - COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS - PERFORMANCE EVALUATION (FAILED)

A motion by Mr. Ewing to oppose SB 770 - County Superintendent of Schools - Performance Evaluation - failed for lack of a second because, although the Board of Education strongly supported annual evaluations of superintendents, they thought it should be a matter of local Board determination.

Re:  A MOTION BY DR. CRONIN ON SB 770 - COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS - PERFORMANCE EVALUATION

Dr. Cronin moved and Mrs. DiFonzo seconded that the Board of Education take no position on SB 770 - County Superintendent of Schools - Performance Evaluation.

RESOLUTION NO. 162-87  Re:  A SUBSTITUTE MOTION ON SB 770 - COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS - PERFORMANCE EVALUATION

RESOLVED, That the Board of Education support the notion of additional Board latitude in setting the term of the contract for superintendents and oppose any legislative action regarding the evaluation of superintendents.

Re: PLANS FOR IMPROVING THE FOREIGN LANGUAGE PROGRAM

Dr. Cody explained that at this point in time he was not recommending requiring foreign language instruction for every student as had been presented earlier. He had said they would look closely at who was not taking foreign language, and that review revealed that a great majority of those students had other educational needs. The other issue was to have foreign language a part of the curriculum in all elementary schools. That did have merit and should be considered in the future, but in view of other priorities he felt that recommendation would not be timely now.

Dr. Mimi Met, coordinator of foreign languages, reported that the paper discussed what staff had underway. It also contained a series of recommendations that would be submitted to the superintendent at a future date for budget requests after FY 1988.

Dr. Shoenberg stated that he would like to take the first two objectives in the report and relate those to the report of the Commission on Excellence in Teaching. They were setting a goal of revising the PROGRAM OF STUDIES. They were also training teachers to implement the revised curriculum. He assumed that the workshop on proficiency would give teachers the opportunity to learn about a variety of methods. He asked about the degree of freedom those teachers would have to achieve desired outcomes in a way they were comfortable with. Dr. Met replied that one major issue with the PROGRAM OF STUDIES was that every teacher and every school could interpret the program. That resulted in a great deal of lack of uniformity from school to school and within schools. For example, a level one course could take one year or two years. They would like more specificity in requirements, but they would like teachers to bring their own strengths to the delivery of that curriculum. She commented that she did not know how the fine line was drawn, but it had to be drawn.

Dr. Cronin pointed out that objective one was for a greater emphasis on communication skills. The two thrusts were in writing and communication. He had heard from students that they had memorized dialogues, but they did not begin to understand a constructive use of the language. Dr. Met replied that she would like to see a balance between communication and writing because writing was yet another form of communication. She commented that they had come to realize that the problem with memorization of dialogues was that no one knew the other half. Students would be expected to know grammar. They would be drilled in principles of grammar, but they would have students apply this to a real setting. The same was true of writing. Previously students were expected to write compositions, but in daily life people wrote notes or memos, not compositions. They would give students an opportunity to communicate their ideas for a variety of purposes.

Dr. Cronin noted the recommendation to get into the less commonly taught languages. He asked about developing the teacher corps to teach these languages. Dr. Met replied that that was a chicken and egg situation. Very few teachers were training to teach those languages because no one was offering these languages. She pointed out that Montgomery County had a large Chinese community and a large Japanese community, and she would be looking toward those groups for assistance. They had received phone calls from people interested in teaching Russian. She thought that with some creativity they could fill those teaching positions. Mr. William Clark, director of the Department of Academic Skills, added that there was interest in an exchange program with Japan.

In regard to certification, Dr. Met reported that the Maryland State Department of Education was looking at alternative routes to recruiting and certification. Dr. Pitt said this was an area where they had to look at the possibility of using people on a part-time basis.

Dr. Cronin asked if, in terms of developing a teacher corps, they were working with Montgomery College or the University of Maryland in fast tracking for teachers who were already certified. Dr. Met replied that they were not at this time.

Mrs. DiFonzo asked if they had ever given thought to offering Arabic, and Mr. Clark replied that they had considered this possibility. Dr. Met added that they had nine languages in the PROGRAM OF STUDIES and only Hebrew was not being offered at the present time. Dr. Cronin asked if Latin was considered to be a foreign language, and Dr. Met explained that it was a classical language. Dr. Cronin wondered if they had thought about some part-time arrangements with Catholic schools to share teachers, and Dr. Met explained at the present time they did not have a problem finding teachers of Latin. The Latin program was a strong one and on the rise across the country. Mrs. Praisner stated that she had two concerns. The introduction of a foreign language in Grade 6 meant that students would come into the seventh and eighth grade program with more language than the FLES experience. She asked what they were doing about the part one and part two issue and the credit issue. The more language students had before they earned credit, the less likely they were to take more language. She felt that starting a foreign language earlier would only make students conclude earlier. Dr. Met replied that the drop-off in enrollment came after two years in high school. However, there were some advantages to beginning a language earlier. Most colleges looked at the number of years of a language and the levels completed. It was more favorable to complete levels 3 and 4 than levels 1 and 2, and students had the opportunity to take level 3 for honors credit. Research seemed to indicate that the longer the sequence of a language, the greater the benefit. She agreed that foreign language should be as exciting as they could make it, but she pointed out that it was still an elective. She would like to see students have the same mindset toward foreign languages as they did to other academic subjects.

Mrs. Praisner expressed her agreement, but she pointed out that some parents would look at things from the standpoint of credit. Students could not get credit for courses taken below the ninth grade level. Her other concern was one that was suggested by introducing the less commonly taught languages at the elementary level. She pointed out that Montgomery County did not consider those courses as a rationale to transfer to another school. She suggested that they had to expand those opportunities to other high schools as well because student interest was there.

Dr. Pitt noted that they did have a practical problem. They were continuing to drop population at the high school level, and a year from now there would be 91 fewer high school teachers which would give them less flexibility at the high school level for the next few years. They did have to look at creative ways to provide foreign language instruction for the next three years until they moved into a growth pattern. Mr. Clark suggested that they had to look at the technology and its potential for providing language instruction, perhaps through the use of cable television.

Dr. Shoenberg pointed out that if students started language instruction in the sixth grade, they would have the opportunity to start a second language in the high school. He also thought they should look toward planning for additional immersion programs in other parts of the county. For example, they might look at the Germantown area. He realized that those programs cost more than the normal elementary school and that there would be a tremendous expense in introducing foreign language across the board, but he wondered about the cost of an immersion program. He suggested that they look at this possibility for the fall of 1988.

Mr. Goldensohn agreed with Dr. Shoenberg and suggested FY 1989 or beyond. He had no problem with the early starts in a foreign language. He had heard that the percentage of English speaking people in the world was going down, and Dr. Met said that this figure was now 7 percent. Mr. Goldensohn pointed out that in many countries the foreign language instruction started at the very beginning of schooling. He had no problem with an earlier introduction of language. He thought that students could be encouraged so that they would not be "turned off."

Mr. Clark reported that they now had three schools offering Russian, and two of them were in the upper-county, Seneca Valley and Gaithersburg. He said that there was a national effort to encourage more interest in that language, and it might be well to consider the teaching of Russian in the upper-county.

Mr. Ewing thought that the recommendations were good ones, and he expressed his support for them. He said they should be moving much more aggressively to introduce foreign language in the elementary schools. He suggested that as they continued to monitor those who did or did not enroll in foreign languages, they should not give the impression that those choosing not to enroll could not benefit. For example in one elementary school they were using Latin to great effect because it was a benefit in helping students learn English. He thought that the Board should come back to this issue on an annual basis. He strongly agreed with Dr. Cody that the Board should place elementary school foreign language instruction on their list as a future priority.

Dr. Cronin said that he liked the idea of internships in Recommendation 7 because in this county they had a multinational business community. He thought they they might be able to develop internships and summer jobs for students to use their language proficiency. Dr. Met pointed out that students often did not see the relationship between their schooling and the real world. Dr. Cronin hoped that they could provide teacher support for the internships as quickly as possible. He suggested using some of the business connections developed by MCPS.

Mrs. DiFonzo thanked staff for their presentation. She hoped that the Board would receive periodic reports of progress.

Re: STATUS AND DIRECTION OF VOCATIONAL EDUCATION IN MCPS

Dr. Cody stated that there were several things that needed to be attended to in vocational education. The first was to make sure that the contents of the various programs they were offering were current and appropriate to prepare young people for occupations. This was best done by a close working relationship with employers, and there was a need to continue to nurture those relationships. The second was to continue to as the question of whether they were offering the right kinds of vocational opportunities in secondary programs in relation to labor market need. The third was to examine the quality of what they were offering, and he pointed out that the Maryland State Department of Education was now evaluating their programs.

Dr. Ted Rybka, director of career and vocational education, explained that the white paper before the Board was a description of where they had been and where they hoped to go including the development of a program for the students in the up-county. He felt that the delivery system for vocational education was changing. They did intend to continue programs for students at the comprehensive high school, but at the same time they recognized that they could not offer the diverse programs that would be available through a center. They felt that a multiple delivery system was important in the MCPS, but one aspect they had never discussed was a vocational/technical high school in Montgomery County.

Dr. Cronin inquired about the latest status of the up-county center. Dr. Cody replied that they were waiting because the recommendation of the education committee was to defer building. Dr. Cronin asked about contingency plans after the year 2000 if the County Council continued to delay. Dr. Rybka replied that they were looking at the programs in the minicenters and the possibility of transportation to allow some students to enroll in Edison. Dr. Lois Martin, associate superintendent, added that they would continue to go ahead with planning. However, she had two concerns because they were now building two new high schools in the up-county with minimal vocational programs. She was also concerned about Gaithersburg High School which had a strong vocational program and might tip over into a vocational center if too many students enrolled.

Dr. Cronin recalled that they had talked about 2+2 programs in the technical area, and he wondered whether they had looked at a 2+2 in a more job related program. Dr. Rybka replied that the technical programs did include occupational programs such as food management and business management. He reported that there had been meetings between the College and MCPS in the area of food services and there would be meetings in the health area.

Dr. Shoenberg stated that the report was a good summary of where they were; however, he had several concerns. It seemed to him that what they planned to do in the future was what they were doing now, only better. He asked if they saw any breaks with current practice or any new directions in the mode of program delivery or the kinds of programs offered or the kind of students served. Dr. Rybka replied that the 2+2 program was a departure from current practice. In addition, the program in the proposed up-county center would allow the academic student to enroll in courses on a limited time basis. They were also looking to utilization of commercial resources and having business prepare students in areas where MCPS was not able to do so. For example, an extension of their internship program would address some student needs.

Dr. Martin pointed out that vocational education was a very dynamic field. She said that the business education enrollment was growing whereas the stenographic program had declined and was being replaced by word processing. She said that the five-year plan for computer-related instruction spelled out plans for office automation. One new area would be communication technology which they were discussing in relation to the up-county center. Dr. Rybka remarked that they needed to upgrade all of their program with new equipment or send students out into the business world for training. Dr. Shoenberg noted that over the years their most successful programs had been the Minidealership and the Construction Trades Program. Those had been successful because business and industry had worked with MCPS staff. He asked whether there were other areas in which they could do some of that sort of thing such as care of the aging, child care, office programs, or data processing. Dr. Martin replied that they had looked at child care and the care of the aging. Unfortunately those were low-paying fields. The two foundations represented areas of the economy where there was a demand for highly skilled, well-paid people who were not necessarily products of higher education. She thought that if they could find comparable situations they could move in this direction.

Mr. Ewing commented that Dr. Cody had said they needed to pay attention to the labor market trends. In Montgomery County the positions for those without college degrees were in the clerical fields or service fields and some areas of trade. Dr. Martin pointed out that many of these positions had a ceiling on earning power. However, they had many contractors who could not find plumbing apprentices which was an excellent trade for both men and women. Dr. Cronin inquired about the special needs students and the handicapped. Dr. Rybka replied that most handicapped could succeed in vocational courses with support while others needed to focus on getting ready to go to work. For example, with support, many students were successful in the copying business. He said they should think about setting up some additional businesses for students and get people to operate these businesses and train MCPS students. Dr. Cronin asked about the possibility of federal funds to support training. Dr. Rybka explained about the difficulty in getting federal, state, and local funds. Dr. Cody added that the Board would be receiving a status report on the job placement of handicapped students. This topic should be discussed with Dr. Fountain and his staff. Dr. Rybka indicated that he was on Dr. Fountain's committee which was working in this area.

Dr. Cronin suggested that they might need a long-range master plan for vocational education activities. He noted that while the Edison Center was relatively new, in 15 years changes would have to be made. Mrs. DiFonzo recalled that at the Board's retreat last year an expert on the future spoke. He had pointed out the increased need for service type jobs. Most of the existing employment was in the fast food area. Many of the college graduates would be taking clerical and service jobs, and she wondered about what would happen to MCPS vocational graduates who would be competing with college graduates. Dr. Martin thought that the vocational/technical student would get the job. She felt they had a real obligation to see that their students had the skills to get a respectable job with a future, not just a job in the fast food industry to earn spending money. Dr. Cody pointed out that there was a tremendous increase in students taking part-time jobs. There might be a program they wanted to offer to train people for these jobs, but he suspected that McDonald's did a better job. Dr. Martin remarked that they did not see a long-term job future in that kind of training. She explained that the cohort of students was smaller now; therefore, there was competition for these students in the workplace.

Mrs. DiFonzo asked if she had heard that they were talking about the possibility of establishing a vocational/technical high school. Dr. Rybka explained that he had mentioned this in the context of various delivery systems. This was not something in the plans for Montgomery County.

Dr. Martin stated that there was another complication about deferring the up-county center. The two foundations were concerned about making programs available to students up-county because these programs were of great benefit to many students. They were keeping the plans on the drawing boards and looking at the consequences of a deferral. Mrs. DiFonzo remarked that while she was supportive of vocational/technical education, she was also wary about labelling those youngsters. Dr. Martin remarked that she was apprehensive about the historical impression that students in these programs were not as deserving as those in a comprehensive high school. It was her hope that the center would be broader than Edison and might include other programs such as a half day in a foreign language. Mrs. Praisner thanked staff for their presentation.
