Re: THE DANFORTH REPORT - REPORT OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND TASK FORCE ON SCHOOL GOVERNANCE

Dr. Vance noted that Mrs. DiFonzo had asked that the Danforth Report be placed on the Board agenda. He also reported that Rick Leone was the president of the Board of Trustees of the Twentieth Century Fund, and he had worked with him in Philadelphia where Mr. Leone was on the cutting edge of education reform. The report was highly critical of and offered suggestions for school boards.

Mrs. DiFonzo commented that she had heard about this report in three separate arenas and thought it might be worth some Board discussion. The premise of the report was that boards of education had to change and if they did not they were part of the problem rather than being part of the solution. She had read the report half a dozen times and each time she came away with different perspectives. In some points, she saw the Montgomery County Board of Education reflected, but by the same token a lot of the criticisms of boards in general were not indicative of the way Montgomery County did business. She pointed to a section on boards in large cities, and while Montgomery County was not a city, there were many elements pertaining to Montgomery County and what it was becoming. One example was the connection the report made between political boundaries and the influence of political entities over the board of education, and Montgomery County Board's boundaries coincided with the political boundaries of the County Council and a congressional district. In another section, the report talked about one Board meeting 172 times in one year. She had gone through her calendar and found that in 1991 Montgomery County met 133 times. She thought that the report represented a mirror that would give members something to look at both as individuals and as a Board. While she was troubled by some of the recommendations in the report, she was gratified by some of the points made. She had publicly spoken about the role the state was taking in terms of laying actions and standards on the local boards. This report also spoke to that. She did not know that the Montgomery County Board could do anything about it in terms of what she would call "macro meddling," but the Board needed to be very cognizant of this. The most recent issue of School Board News had an article asking whether school boards could reform themselves. She hoped that the Board, staff, and community would think about these issues. Mrs. Hobbs hoped that copies of this report would be provided to the Task Force on Long-range Planning. The report spoke to the training of school board members, and although there was an orientation provided in Montgomery County by the ombudsman and staff assistant, she thought the training needed was that provided by the Maryland Association of Boards of Education. One section of the report talked about some things that Boards did that they didn't necessarily need to do. For example, perhaps the Board should no longer approve its consent items including grant applications, procurement, appointment of architects, etc. She thought the Board should ask the superintendent to come back with some recommendations on things that could be eliminated from the Board agenda. The last thing that struck her was the idea of a report card for the Board of Education. She thought it was very important for the Board to be held accountable, and the only way they currently were held accountable was at election time.

Mr. Ewing was not very impressed by the report because it focused on structure as a solution to the problems that would not be solved by structural changes. He remarked that the problems of American education began with the continuing unwillingness of the American public to support adequate investments in public schools. He did not think that had much to do with the structure of the governance of public education. There was one thing of importance which was the emphasis on the continuing need to focus on policy matters, policy development, policy implementation, and accountability for implementation. He hoped that they didn't tie themselves up worrying about structure when there was so much more to be concerned about in terms of the budget, program, and policy implementation. He thought that over the last couple of years this Board had focused on those issues more and more successfully than at any time in his memory. While there was always room for improvement, he did not believe focusing on governance would help them much.

Mrs. Fanconi was not sure the report should be given to the long-range task force unless the Board had had time to discuss it. She, too, had read it several times and come away with different views. In the beginning the report stated that it was in their interest to use tax dollars to educate children, and it also talked about local elected school boards and the belief that it was desirable to have local control of education. Montgomery County had supported this for a long time, but there had been experiences in other parts of the country where boards were not elected which was less accountable. She felt that there were a lot of good things going on in Maryland because there were 24 school districts as opposed to states where there were hundreds of school systems too small to provide the services of a county school system.

Mrs. Fanconi had studied Maryland school law and there was a lot of history about the checks and balances between county councils and boards of education. For example, the Council could cut the school budget but they had to do it by individual projects rather than across-the-board cuts which made the Council accountable to the electorate.

Mrs. Fanconi said that it might be interesting to find out how much time the Board spent on policy items and on administrative issues. They could discuss their duties and roles. She pointed out that the law required them to vote on consent items, and if the Board didn't want to handle these items they would have to seek some changes in the law. The report raised some questions about evaluating how the Board did spend its time and about setting up a check and balance system with the superintendent. She called attention to the discussion in the report about the integration of services. She really thought that school system people had always been strong advocates for children, but impacting on those children were family, housing, and health issues which were not in the purview of the Board of Education. There was a national move toward more integration of services, and Montgomery County and the state were moving toward this, and she felt it was important for the Board to have frequent briefings on what was going in this arena.

Mrs. Fanconi stated that the other piece of the report that was of interest was financing. The norm was that localities covered 44 percent of the funding of their budget. She thought that what was happening was more and more localities were receiving less and less federal and state funding. On the federal, state, and local levels, everyone wanted education to do better but nobody wanted to fund it. She pointed out that public schools were mandated to serve every single child coming to their door no matter what the educational need of the child was. People were not realistic when they expected schools to do a better job with less money. She hoped that at some point Dr. Vance would have the opportunity to share some of the successes in MCPS despite the cuts in funding and the changing needs of the community.

Dr. Cheung enjoyed reading the report and thanked Mrs. DiFonzo for sharing it with the Board. He didn't think that the report had touched the effects of social and technological changes on boards of education. The American educational system especially at the college level was recognized worldwide as being one of the best, but public schools were no longer the best in the world. He didn't think the report addressed why this had happened. He asked about a report card for the nation on what had happened. He thought that the composition and functions of boards might have a lot to do with the quality and excellence of their school systems. He suggested that they needed a deeper discussion in terms of the governance issue.

Mr. Sims enjoyed reading the report especially about how school boards related to other services provided to students. As they looked at some of the changes in education especially the community service mandate and the health half credit, they should feel comfortable in going to other parts of the government and looking for cooperation and partnerships so there would not be an overlap in services.

Re: RECOMMENDATIONS FOR THE BOARD OF EDUCATION'S DECEMBER 10, 1991 RESOLUTION CONCERNING MATH AND SCIENCE REQUIREMENTS FOR ELEMENTARY TEACHERS

Dr. Vance thought that the previous discussion was a good lead-in to this topic. This was a direct consequence of Board action which put them on the cutting edge in terms of preparing youngsters for math, science, literacy, and high level competency for the 21st century. In adopting the resolution, the Board was saying there was a commitment to expanding mathematics requirements. Before the Board today was the superintendent's plan for implementation of the Board resolution. One part of the Board resolution was that by 1999 all newly hired elementary teachers would have a minimum of 12 hours of college math and 12 hours of college science courses including algebra, geometry, statistics and probability, biology, and one year of either chemistry or physics. Current teachers would have to meet this requirement by 1999-2000 unless there was a demonstration that the requirement could be met in other ways. He had asked Dr. Joseph Villani and Dr. Elfreda Massie, associate superintendents, and Dr. Mary Helen Smith and Dr. Cindy Sullivan to respond to questions.

Dr. Villani reported that they had a presentation by staff on some of the training activities to implement the Board's math and science requirements. Dr. Sullivan commented that this was a very exciting project because in March they had conceptualized these ideas and by this summer 300 people were taking the course. At present 1,100 people were involved in math content connections. She indicated that 81 schools requested the program, and 36 schools were selected to participate in six clusters. She expressed her appreciation for the work that staff in math and science had done for this program. She introduced Ms. Norma Mellott and Ms. Joy Odom.

Mrs. Mellott presented information on the three content courses they had developed for math connections. The courses were designed to introduce teachers to problem solving, reasoning, writing about mathematics, and probability and statistics. They encouraged teachers in the courses to ask questions and to use physical materials because they hoped that teachers would expect children to ask questions and use manipulatives. The plan involved training all teachers in the school from the classroom teacher to the art and music teachers to make every teacher a math teacher. The Maryland State Department of Education had grant permission to give credit hours for the courses, and when teachers finished the program they would have six hours in math. They help schools to involve the community and provided instructional strategies to the school. The strategies included peer coaching, promoting gender equity, and teaching and learning theory. This year they would have 36 schools and 1,100 teachers in the program. Each school was involved for two years, and next year they hoped to have 45 schools involved. At the end of four years, all teachers in MCPS would have the opportunity for six hours of math credit.

Board members viewed a video tape of activities which took place during the summer training.

Dr. Gerry Consuegra, coordinator of elementary science, reported that training was not new in elementary schools. They had science content training supported by an Eisenhower grant, the National Science Foundation grant, and the model unit training program. They were now emphasizing process and problem solving, and each year 80 to 100 teachers participated in the after-school courses. The courses emphasized scientific inquiry about ways of sharing activities with children, and the instructors were high school science teachers or local college professors. This year they had used about $27,000 of Eisenhower funds to support this training.
The NSF grant was to assist the county in restructuring the elementary school science curriculum and to prepare a cadre of teachers to serve as leaders. They had a science center and were field testing state-of-the-art materials. To date, they had trained 68 teachers to act as leaders and through Loyola College they provided three credit hours. The budget for this effort was $65,000. In regard to the model unit implementation, they required training for all teachers using the new unit, and they were doing this training by grade countywide. This training cost $26,000 last year. He showed the Board a video tape of the training.

Mrs. Brenneman was pleased to hear that art, music, and physical education teachers were also receiving the math training. She felt that students would be very receptive to math concepts presented in these contexts.

Mrs. Gemberling reported that they had just come to an agreement with Johns Hopkins University for a master's degree program. MCPS would offer a core of 15 credits in math and science, and teachers would be able to choose among three different master's degree programs with Hopkins. Mr. Ewing was delighted with the news about Hopkins. He noted that the paper before the Board referred to a math/science resolution, and he thought this should be referred to as a Board policy. He was very pleased with the progress they had made to date. Dr. Cheung also expressed his enthusiasm for the program particularly in the training for problem-solving and analytical skills.

Dr. Massie indicated that she had been approached by a number of colleges and universities. They were now considering changing math and science requirements for elementary school teacher training.

Dr. Vance remarked that this was another example of why MCPS continued to be a lighthouse school system despite their reduction in resources. He believed that time and test scores would show the correlation between the training of teachers and the achievement levels of youngsters. He suggested that this would make an excellent presentation for the Council's education committee to clear up some of the misunderstandings about the need for teacher training. Mrs. Hobbs thanked staff for the presentation.

Re: TIMELINE FOR CONSIDERATION OF THE QUALITY INTEGRATED EDUCATION AND LONG-RANGE FACILITIES POLICIES

Dr. Vance explained that it was his recommendation to revise the QIE policy before the long-range facilities policy because the first guided the latter. Mrs. Hobbs asked Board members if they had any general comments or specific concerns about the proposed timeline. Mr. Ewing pointed out that the timeline permitted the Board's new task force on long-range planning to comment on the facilities policy. Mr. Sims recalled that on July 7 he had asked about the possibility of involving students in discussions of QIE and boundary changes. Dr. Mary Helen Smith explained that no decision had been reached about this, but she hoped that Mr. Sims could educate students about these issues and encourage them to testify at the public hearings on the policies. She suggested that she and Mr. Sims get together to discuss this. Mrs. Hobbs thanked staff for their paper.
September 9, 1992

RESOLUTION NO. 677-92 Re: TASK FORCE ON LONG-RANGE PLANNING AND RESOURCE ALLOCATION - CHARGE

Re: PRESENTATION ON STATE CHALLENGE GRANTS

Mrs. Hobbs welcomed Dr. Nancy Grasmick, state superintendent of schools; Dr. Robert Gabrys, assistant state superintendent; Mr. Jack Sprague, vice president of the Maryland State Board of Education; Delegate Gene Counihan; and Delegate Hank Heller.
Dr. Grasmick stated that the state challenge grants were a team effort, but the legislation and funding would not make this program a reality without the support of Dr. Vance, Mrs. Gemberling, and the Montgomery County public schools. She commented that the Maryland School Performance Program attempted to insure that all students performed according to very high standards. Based on the analysis of information already generated, they knew that there would be students and schools where there would be problems that might negate high student performance. The challenge for them was how to address that issue. MSDE pursued the notion of challenge grants legislation. She acknowledged the extraordinary efforts of Delegate Heller on behalf of MCPS and all school systems in Maryland. He worked with her and members of her staff to craft the legislation. He and Delegate Counihan were instrumental in articulating the importance of this legislation to their colleagues. The legislation spoke to an innovative opportunity to address the complexity of needs of schools not achieving as well as they should. The legislation created a program known as the Challenge Grant Program that would enable selected jurisdictions to create a school-based program for a three-year period with very specific goals and an evaluation component. She reported that the governor was strongly in favor of this legislation and the up to $2.3 million for MCPS was not in jeopardy.

Dr. Gabrys stated that the challenge grant program was a component of their schools for success program and the MSPP program. With MSPP they started off talking about data-based areas that would allow the state to identify outcomes expected for public education. This would move them away from processes and allow MSDE to become more of a service organization for the attainment of those outcomes. The second part of MSPP was to identify standards for those outcomes, and the third component was to publicly report how they were doing. These report cards would be published each November, and the customer for the report cards issued by MCPS would be their community people. The fourth component of MSPP was school improvement. One of the major efforts of MSPP and the challenge grants was to talk about accountability through school improvement which was a paradigm shift from the traditional approach which would talk about going from school improvement through accountability. Typically in education they would point out what was wrong and expect building level people to fix that. The program operated the other way because it said that accountability was a major piece of what they were about. The last component of the MSPP was the school review system which looked at every school in the state. This looked at the school in reference to state and local standards. This was not competition of school against school but competition against the state standards and competition of the school with itself in terms of a growth continuum.
Dr. Gabrys explained that the challenge schools came out of the school review structure. They decided they did not have to wait five years because they knew they already had some problems. For example, in Montgomery County they had a large ESOL population and high mobility. They talked about identifying problem areas, and they started with a list of features of a program. The first was that the state superintendent and the local superintendent would enter into a written agreement about the characteristics of the program. The MCPS attorneys were reviewing this agreement. The second feature of the program was systematic reform at the building level. Schools would be empowered, and MSDE would be a service group to help the teachers with student learning. The funding would go through the MCPS central operations to the school. The school would sit down with a school improvement team and work out what they needed to diagnose and address their needs. The schools would be able to utilize those resources to implement programs for children. The legislation also empowered the state superintendent to be involved in who was leading the schools. This came from the literature which stated that the principal should be an instructional leader and not just a manager. This program was a partnership with the state. The state would not operate as a regulatory agency but rather as a service agency with strong technical assistance and support.

Dr. Gabrys explained that another feature of the program was the school improvement team. If they were going to empower the school, there needed to be a structure that allowed the people within the schools to be involved in decision making. This provided a support base to the principal, but this also continued to recognize that the principal was the leader of the school and the accountable agent for the school. The last feature was a school review team made up of experts in school effectiveness variables and, in the case of Montgomery County, ESOL. The team would conduct an on-site evaluation and act as a support system to the school improvement team. The school review team would allow them to draw on state and national expertise and feed that information into the school improvement team so they could build a plan of action. In addition, they would be building an evaluation scheme. He emphasized that the money would be used for the schools to deal with the real problems in those schools. Dr. Grasmick asked MCPS staff to announce the schools selected. Mrs. Gemberling indicated that they had looked at data on high mobility and ESOL population, and they had made a decision to go with a cluster approach. They had identified the Wheaton cluster to receive the challenge grants. She recognized the Wheaton cluster principals in the audience.

Mr. Sprague, Dr. Heller, and Delegate Counihan expressed their excitement that MCPS was going to participate in the program. Mrs. Hobbs thanked Dr. Grasmick and Dr. Gabrys for their presentation. Dr. Grasmick announced that Maryland had just received a national service grant, and because MCPS had such an outstanding proposal, the state would be funding the MCPS proposal.

Re: TITLE IX, GENDER EQUITY, COMMITTEE ANNUAL REPORT

Dr. Vance stated that the Board had received the report of the Title IX Advisory Committee which did contain several recommendations.

Ms. Connie Tonat, past president, introduced Ms. Nancy Rea, chair for 1992-93, who put together the annual report, and Ms. Janet Crampton, who would be their chair for 1993-94. Ms. Tonat gave a special thanks to Ms. Joy Odom, their staff liaison, who inspired the committee and served as a strong role model for all committee members.

Ms. Rea noted that the Title IX law was celebrating its 20th anniversary, and she was confident the Board would have an ongoing commitment to equity. She complimented them for including all students in the primary goals of the school system as reflected in the Success for Every Student plan. Many of the data reported by staff now included gender, and the Board had taken the time to meet with the committee and discuss the AAUW report, "Shortchanging Girls; Shortchanging America." The Board had funded the support staff salary changes and had participated in the Commission for Women's Equity Forum in May. Now the Board was working on the issue of sexual harassment.

Ms. Rea reported that this year the committee focused on employment and affirmative action, management plans and curriculum, athletics, and guidance and counseling. Their first recommendation was that the system should model the philosophy that SES was promoting. After looking through the SES document, they found that it did not include gender as a major concern of MCPS. They saw outcomes spelled out for all students with particular emphasis on racial groups and little on gender. They believed there were significant differences in the ways males and females learned and that these differences must be taken into consideration. For example, on SAT scores in Montgomery County, girls scored 40 points lower than boys. As far as school system leadership, they saw real progress because as of last spring they had a female deputy superintendent and three female associate superintendents. At that time they still had only five female high school principals. At the elementary level, the situation was different because there they needed more male teachers. They suggested including gender equity as an aspect of all Board policies including SES. They recommended including gender breakdowns in all data analyzed, and they asked that gender be considered automatically when they were addressing the goals of the system.

Ms. Rea said their second recommendation was that the Board and the school system should search for funds to continue gender equity for teachers and all others and should include gender equity as a component in all on-going training. They recognized the Board had budget problems, but they thought the Board could engage in some cooperative efforts with other bodies or some way to work gender equity into training on curriculum. Their third recommendation was for MCPS to correct practices in the athletics and sports program. They had found staffing patterns in physical education classes and on athletics staff that were more detrimental to women than they were in the past. They asked that the Board monitor local school spending for athletic programs to be sure that girls' programs were receiving their share. Concern had been expressed by parents and students that money for uniforms and equipment was not as available for the girls teams as for the boys teams. Ms. Tonat hoped that the task force on gender equity in athletics would be able to address some of the important issues discussed in the Title IX annual report. She saw problems of discrimination in athletics along with sexual harassment as being deeply rooted in cultural practices and values. Therefore, they would have to work on this issue over a very long period of time.

Ms. Rea stated that their fourth recommendation came from their work with the Guidance Department. They saw the school system as a business producing a product, preparing a student to go on with the rest of his or her life. The guidance counselor was crucial to this, but guidance and counseling should not work alone in an isolated environment. All other adults in the system also engaged in counseling activities. They found that students bonded to the teacher when the two-period algebra class was instituted. Those teachers felt they needed extra training to be able to meet the needs of those students. The guidance counselor could identify the needs of students, and parents could be pulled in to help. Many of the guidance departments were doing great things, but other schools did not know of these activities. They recommended a system of sharing these things. They felt that counselors needed extra training on identifying female students needing intervention because frequently these students did not draw attention by acting out as boys did.
Ms. Tonat commented that the front line issues with respect to counseling were sexual harassment, teenage pregnancy, and the impact of culture, gender, and class in the classroom and in the school. They needed strong support from the Board and the administration for a system of counseling and advising which would allow them to develop innovative programs to enable students to achieve success in course and career choices. She urged the Board to support conferences and workshops to open up avenues of discussion among counselors, advisors, and teachers to discuss successful initiatives to reduce sexual harassment, deter teenage pregnancy, and assure gender equity in career choices and chances.

Ms. Rea reported that their fifth recommendation was to establish a training program for parents on how to work effectively with the school system. She felt that the use of parents was an untapped resource particularly in a budget crunch. Parents were highly motivated to help their children succeed, and if the parent felt comfortable about approaching the school for assistance in working with their children, they would have more successful students. Parents were also discouraging their daughters from taking appropriate classes instead of encouraging them to enroll in math and science.

Ms. Rea suggested that the Board look at all policies from the standpoint of gender equity, provide training for staff members on gender equity, look at the athletic program, expand guidance efforts, and train parents. Mrs. Hobbs commented that their annual report gave the Board some good recommendations.

Mr. Ewing felt that the suggestion that the Board look at policies with a view to addressing gender equity was a good one. It was also a major chore in the way of workload. He asked that when the superintendent responded to the report that he take a close look at what it would take to review policies. He said that if the Board gave this attention it would be a major message to the school system. Mr. Sims said he would be interested in learning how other jurisdictions in Maryland saw the issue of gender equity and what policies and programs they had in place. He knew that in regard to athletics a number of counties were significantly behind the times, and with their task force on gender equity he expected that within a year MCPS would be in the forefront of gender equity in athletics.

Ms. Gutierrez thanked the committee for a very good report. She believed that this might be the year in which they did something about the issue of gender equity. She thought that generally society now had a raised level of awareness of the issue of women’s potential contributions being limited in every aspect of life. She pointed out that the Board had already asked the superintendent to look at SES regarding gender equity. She said that their other recommendations were very valuable, and she noted that some did not have a price tag. Later this afternoon they would be talking about the sexual harassment policy, and under new business she would be introducing an item on the economic aspects of athletics that directly related to issues raised by the committee.

Mrs. Fanconi thanked the committee for all of their hard work. She reported that at her daughter's college they had a policy that every class had to have a certain percentage of women authors. She would like the committee to assess what could be gained in looking at that kind of reading list material to gain a multiple perspective. Mrs. Gemberling stated that the original design of SES did not include gender equity, but in August they had added gender information to the data shells along with racial data. Ms. Gutierrez asked that the committee consider adding sexual harassment to its agenda.

Mrs. Hobbs thanked the committee for their report.

Re: SUCCESSFUL PROGRAMS AT EINSTEIN, KENNEDY, GAITHERSBURG, AND SENEC VALLEY HIGH SCHOOLS

Dr. Vance stated that on May 12 the Board requested that this meeting be scheduled. The Board had received summaries prepared by each cluster describing progress during the 1991-92 school year. They had asked the principals in each cluster to select a representative. Michael Glascoe would be representing the Einstein cluster, Elaine Seikaly the Gaithersburg cluster, Vera Torrence the Kennedy cluster, and Bonnie Fox the Seneca Valley cluster.

Dr. Phinnize Fisher, associate superintendent, stated that this was a delightful opportunity to meet successful principals and talk about successful programs. She introduced the principals of all the schools in each cluster. She noted that the report before the Board was based on the last school year.

Mr. Glascoe said that the Einstein cluster prided itself on being community-minded. They had a partnership with Wheaton Plaza, and all of their schools were now in the SIMS program. They were linking their schools together using the student data to further enhance their success. They were also pleased with the supports and resources they had received; however, they wanted to be sure these supports were sustained over a period of time so that they could continue to make the gains they had made. They hoped to improve the recruitment process for quality staff. In a high minority cluster with tremendous diversity, they needed a high powered staff. He also reported that the Einstein cluster had extremely active PTAs, and principals made a point of attending other school PTA meetings as well as their own.
Ms. Seikaly indicated that Gaithersburg was a large cluster geographically and in terms of population, and they were still growing as evidenced by the number of portables at their elementary schools. They were also very diverse, and in their schools the students on free and reduced lunch program ranged from 10 percent to 50 percent. They had partnerships with Lake Forest Mall, IBM, CDSI, and Kettler Brothers. In addition, they had a strong partnership with the City of Gaithersburg which gave them a lot of moral and financial support. Ms. Seikaly commented that it was a very difficult task for them to raise test scores, and she credited a very talented and dedicated staff for the progress they had made. She said that three years ago their cluster principals started meeting on a monthly basis, and this past spring they decided as a cluster to focus on math programs and test scores.

Ms. Torrence stated that in the Kennedy cluster they were committed to providing educational programs to meet the needs of their diverse student population and to promote parent and community involvement. They worked individually and collaboratively as a group with PTA leadership and school leadership teams to determine school needs, to plan for areas of improvement and for times of change, and to celebrate their successes. Principals met monthly throughout the year and met with PTA leadership for the purpose of communication and to establish a cohesive Kennedy cluster focus. The Kennedy cluster schools offered a variety of unique programs and activities. All schools provided community volunteer programs to gain direct involvement of parents, community leaders, senior citizens, and representatives of local businesses. All schools offered mentor programs and most schools were involved in the adopt-a-school program or alternate programs designed to attract business involvement. The schools provided special on-site programs designed to promote achievement in reading, math, study skills, and writing. All schools provided summer opportunities. There was a strong articulation process between the elementary, middle, and secondary schools. This involved communication about students and programs and was revisited each year so that necessary improvements were implemented. In addition, many of their schools were site schools for the University of Maryland teacher education center, and Kennedy was a University of Maryland professional development school. All of these programs had resulted in continuing gains of their students in achievement at all levels. The positive image of their cluster has resulted, and increased parent and community involvement was evident. There was a high degree of parental satisfaction and support for schools in the Kennedy cluster.

Ms. Fox stated that in 1980 Germantown was a farming community with a few thousand people. They now had 45,000 people, and the Germantown area and its schools were growing and changing. The Seneca Valley cluster was involved with the Department of Energy, Public Health, Fairchild Industries, and N.I.H. They were a cluster of ten schools, eight elementary, one intermediate, and one high school. The student population was very diverse, and they saw this as an opportunity and celebrated diversity; however, they were sensitive to the many needs and challenges of this diversity. In order to bring unity and consistency, the principals met regularly to support cluster initiatives and to share common concerns. They had worked to improve math scores, coordinate human relations day activities, and coordinate the SIMS project in all cluster schools. Their staff was dedicated to doing whatever is necessary to provide for individual needs and the best education possible for their students in the most nurturing and caring environment. They were proud, gratified, and energized by their successes.

Mrs. Hobbs asked the cluster representatives to tell the Board their biggest challenge or greatest need for the school year. Mr. Glascoe replied that it was hard to prioritize something like that. If he were to talk about Einstein High School, he would have to start with facilities and then staffing. They had to keep a high powered staff that could roll with the punches because he had seen staff almost reach a point of burnout. Ms. Seikaly agreed that burnout was a real issue. They were asking more of staff than they ever did, and they had to find ways of recognizing, relieving, and training staff.

Ms. Torrence noted that there had been a lot of changes in MCPS, and there needed to be assistance with the change. It was important that communication be extended to the community so that they were cognizant of the change. They were also asking parents to be more and more involved because this was a high indicator of student achievement, but for many parents this was just one more demand on their time. Ms. Fox stated that as a principal they needed staff because without the staff they would not continue to make a difference. For example, at Seneca Valley over the past four years they had made tremendous strides, but this year she had 100 more students and seven fewer staff. She would also like to see more time for staff development, not an hour after school. She would like them to consider an extra week added at the beginning of the school year for teachers to plan strategies and do some serious thinking and planning.

Mrs. Brenneman thought that the reports were excellent. In listening to all of them in response to the question raised by Mrs. Hobbs, she noted that they did not talk about the things they personally needed. They talked about things for their staff and how much was required of staff, not how much the Board required of principals. She knew the long hours that principals put in, and she thanked them for their true professionalism.

Mrs. Fanconi commented that there was never enough time to ask all the questions and acknowledge the efforts of everyone in the room. She thought their work together as teams was outstanding and contributed to their success. She hoped that there was the possibility of networking among the four clusters because they appeared to have a lot of similarities. In regard to staff development, Mrs. Fanconi reported that this morning the Board had been briefed on some staff development courses in math and science. Dr. Vance had indicated that he was going to take the presentation to the County Council to explain to them why staff development was so important. She suggested that principals might do some educating on their own before the budget came out about the importance of teachers learning from each other and about the impact of cutting staff development funds.

Dr. Cheung was impressed with the cluster team spirit because a lighthouse school district needed involved parents, outstanding teachers, outstanding leadership, and an excellent learning environment. He asked for their reaction to the Board's new site-based management policy. Ms. Seikaly replied that this was a complex issue for principals to deal with. She would imagine that they would agree that they wanted to empower teachers in as many ways as possible to be case managers making decisions about the education of children. The confusion was how they managed all of this. What kinds of decisions did they expect teachers to make on behalf of the education of students? What decisions would be made about managing a school? Principals had leadership groups they met with to try to make school decisions, but the hour or so a week devoted to this activity was not enough. She believed they needed a balance between empowering teachers to make decisions on behalf of students and separating out the time-consuming decisions. They also had to look at how to leave the administrative management in place to be held accountable and decide on which decisions they needed to make.

Ms. Gutierrez asked for an idea of how principals were using SIMS and how this had changed their job. She would also like to know some specifics of what they could do now and the information they hadn't had before. Mr. Glascoe replied that they would be looking at giving feedback to the feeder schools on the progress of students. Before SIMS, this would have been impossible. The elementary school and the middle school could then plan curriculum and instruction to move students up to the high school. Articulation activities between Einstein and Sligo had been much smoother because they shared information. For example, if he wanted student information, he could have it in 30 minutes rather than writing memos and then having someone tell him it was not possible.

Ms. Fox stated that not a day went by when she or her staff was not using SIMS. She used it for recognition of students. She was able to send letters to students whose GPAs had improved, or she would send letters to students whose GPAs had dropped and ask if they needed help. She used SIMS to communicate with students and parents on student success. Her resource teachers had all been trained, and they had been working with staff. She believed SIMS to be a terrific tool.

Ms. Gutierrez asked about the currentness of SIMS information. Ms. Seikaly replied that functional scores were put in once a year, enrollment would be put in after the 30th day, and SIMS had a quarterly download. She said they were not talking about on-line here, but they did get monthly attendance reports. The SIMS data was useful to them when they were trying to analyze data and look for patterns.

Mr. Ewing recalled that one of the origins of this session was the concern of the part of the Board about the needs of the Einstein community, its schools, and their needs. They had heard from staff and community about the need to focus on needs and to set goals. He asked about whether these goals represented goals to which the leadership of the schools was committed and to what extent they felt they had made substantial progress toward achieving those goals.

Mr. Glascoe replied that beyond the increase in the functional test scores they were looking at an increase in community involvement for all seven schools. When they established their Einstein cluster advisory committee, one of the premises for developing that group was to look at the resources and support they needed to get the job done. Secondly, they wanted to improve the image of their cluster. This group took a hard look at this and tried to develop a mission, vision statement, and a focus for the years to come. One common thread was the involvement of the community from school to school and parent to teacher. Two years ago they had a meeting at Einstein to look at the test data, and they found people did not know that a tremendous number of students taking the functional tests had not been in MCPS for more than a year. Therefore, they tried to inform the community and get them involved.

Mr. Ewing asked about the process of the management plans and how that process was working. He wanted to know the extent of parental involvement in the process. Ms. Seikaly replied that they were mandated to have parental involvement. She used her PTA executive board to prioritize goals and assess the school's vision. In addition, she asked parents to fill out a work sheet to help the school assess where they needed to improve. All of that data went to her leadership team to finalize the school improvement goals for the new year. Ms. Torrence said that in her experience parents were willing to be involved in the process. One benefit was the education parents received about the mechanics of prioritizing needs in the school. She thought that parents had a better appreciation of what teachers, principals, and support staff went through. Ms. Fox added that at Seneca Valley they had an instructional council with resource teachers, the business manager, the PTSA president, and PTSA past president. They met on a weekly basis and also attended the instructional workshop this summer where planning was done for the implementation plans. All of this was reviewed with the PTSA executive committee.

Mrs. Hobbs thanked the principals and cluster representatives for their report.

Re: POLICY REGARDING SEXUAL HARASSMENT

Dr. Cheung moved and Mrs. Fanconi seconded the following resolution:

WHEREAS, On March 10, 1992, the Board of Education adopted a resolution to develop an inclusive policy on sexual harassment; and

WHEREAS, The Board of Education discussed a draft policy on May 12, 1992, and asked staff to review issues raised during the discussion; and

WHEREAS, On July 9, 1992, staff presented a new draft to address those issues; and

WHEREAS, Staff and Board attorneys have reviewed the draft policy; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the Board of Education tentatively adopt the proposed policy on sexual harassment; and be it further

Resolved, That the draft policy be sent out for public comment.

Sexual Harassment

A. PURPOSE

To affirm the Board of Education's opposition to sexual harassment in the Montgomery County public school system

To establish explicitly the responsibilities of all MCPS employees and students by defining conduct which constitutes prohibited and inappropriate behaviors

To create a mandate to develop educational programs designed to help MCPS employees and students recognize, understand, prevent, and take corrective action to end sexual harassment

To establish the framework for effective procedures for addressing harassment complaints
B. ISSUE

Inappropriate sexual conduct will not be tolerated and may constitute sexual harassment. Sexual harassment is an unlawful form of discrimination on the basis of sex under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended in 1972 and 1991, Title IX of the Education Amendment of 1972, and Article 49B of the Annotated Code of Maryland. Some forms of sexual harassment may also constitute criminal conduct.

By issuing a single, comprehensive policy statement, the Board of Education seeks to clarify and reaffirm its commitment to ensuring that all MCPS employees and students are provided with a work and learning environment that is free of sexual harassment.

C. POSITION

MCPS does not condone or tolerate any form of sexual harassment of, or by, staff or students.

MCPS is committed to creating and maintaining an environment in which all persons who participate in school programs and activities can be together in an atmosphere free of all forms of sexual harassment. Specifically, everyone shall be informed that MCPS does not condone or tolerate any form of sexual harassment of or by staff, and that such behavior is prohibited both by law and MCPS policy. Everyone shall also be informed that MCPS does not condone or tolerate any form of sexual harassment or other inappropriate behavior of a sexual nature by students and that such behavior is prohibited by MCPS policy. It is the intention of MCPS to take whatever action may be needed to prevent, correct, and, if necessary, discipline behavior which violates this policy.

It is the responsibility of every supervisor and principal to recognize acts of sexual harassment and take necessary action to ensure that such instances are addressed swiftly, fairly, and effectively. Consequently, all MCPS administrative and supervisory staff in schools, offices, and other facilities shall be cognizant of, and responsible for, effectively implementing the sexual harassment complaint resolution procedures established in this policy.

1. Definition

Sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other inappropriate verbal, written, or physical conduct of a sexual nature that takes place under any of the following circumstances:

a. When submission to such conduct is made, explicitly or implicitly, a term or condition of employment, instruction, or participation in other school activities

b. When submission to or rejection of such conduct by an individual is used by the offender as the basis for making personnel or academic decisions affecting the individual subjected to sexual advances

c. When such conduct has the effect of unreasonably interfering with the individual's work and/or academic performance or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work or learning environment

2. Application to Employees

This policy applies to all sexual harassment incidents involving MCPS employees. It addresses incidents committed by a person of either sex against a person of the opposite or same sex. It also establishes that it is against policy and recognizes that it may be unlawful for MCPS employees to commit acts of sexual harassment.

3. Application to Students

Sexual harassment committed by students of either sex against students of the opposite or same sex constitutes inappropriate behavior. All allegations will be investigated by the principal using the guidelines of Section E of this policy. Depending on the severity of the offense, appropriate disciplinary action, from counseling to suspension or expulsion, can be taken using the discipline policies adopted by the Board of Education.

4. Examples

Sexual harassment, under certain circumstances, may include, but is not limited to any unwelcome behavior with sexual overtones which is intimidating or offensive to the recipient or observer of the behavior such as: grabbing, touching, patting; sexual propositions; repeated requests for dates; sexually offensive pictures, magazines, calendars, cartoons, or jokes; unwanted flirtations or advances; verbal abuse;

E. IMPLEMENTATION PRINCIPLES AND GUIDELINES AND STRATEGIES

1. Principles and Guidelines

a. Any MCPS employee or student who believes that he/she has been subjected to sexual harassment has the right to file a complaint and to receive prompt and appropriate handling of her/his complaint. In all phases of the complaint resolution process, every reasonable effort shall be made to maintain the confidentiality and protect the privacy of all parties, consistent with MCPS' responsibility to investigate and address such complaints.

b. Any MCPS employee or student who believes that he/she has been subjected to sexual harassment, or who has any knowledge of other staff members or students who may be engaging in sexual harassment, should report such conduct promptly, orally or in writing, to the immediate supervisor/principal, or directly to the EEO Officer. The supervisor/principal will report to the EEO officer any complaint received regarding sexual harassment involving employees. If the complaint involves MCPS employees, the Office of Personnel Services will carry out the investigation through the Office of the Deputy Superintendent for Planning, Technology and Supportive Services in coordination with the EEO Officer. If the complaint involves only students, the investigation will be carried out in accordance with existing student discipline policies.

c. The full circumstances of the situation will be considered in the investigation of possible harassment incidents. In determining whether the alleged conduct constitutes sexual harassment, consideration shall be given to the record of the incident as a whole and to the totality of the circumstances, including the context in which the alleged incidents occurred.

d. Retaliation against an individual who either orally reports or files a written complaint regarding sexual harassment or who participates in or cooperates with an investigation is prohibited. The right to confidentiality, both of the complainant and the accused, shall be preserved consistent with applicable laws and MCPS' responsibility to investigate and address such complaints.

e. Any MCPS employee who violates this policy shall be subject to appropriate action, including but not limited to oral or written reprimand, professional counseling, reassignment, demotion, suspension or termination.

f. MCPS employees and students should seek guidance, support, and/or advocacy in addressing matters related to sexual offenses of any degree. Employees of the Department of Human Relations, Employee Assistance, and the Office of Student Affairs are to be available for these services.

2. Strategies appropriate implementation of this policy. These training programs shall be designed to:

1. Inform them of their duties, responsibilities, and potential liabilities as workplace managers when dealing with incidents involving sexual harassment.

2. Assist them in developing training programs for MCPS employees dealing with sexual harassment to inform them of the policy, what sexual harassment is, what the individual can do, and where to go for help. The aim of such training is to ensure increased awareness of inappropriate behaviors prohibited by this policy and other state and federal laws on sexual harassment.

3. Provide clear guidelines and assistance for handling appropriately all incidents of sexual harassment in MCPS.

d. Provide for the infusion of curricular experiences that will help students to aggressively confront matters related to sexual harassment and develop behaviors and attitudes that mitigate against inappropriate sexual overtures and pressures in school, work, and social settings. Included should be updated student competencies in the K-12 comprehensive guidance and counseling program. K-12 curricular modifications that integrate activities and skill building to help students understand and overcome sexual harassment problems should be introduced as soon as possible.

F. REVIEW AND REPORTING

1. The superintendent will report quarterly to the Board of Education on reported sexual harassment incidents. Reports shall include quantitative as well as qualitative monthly incident aggregate data for both MCPS staff and students; complaint and resolution process evaluations and improvements; training statistics and schedules; ongoing evaluation of work environments in all MCPS schools, offices, and work locations; and any other activities being planned or carried out by MCPS that are relevant to the successful implementation of this policy.

RESOLUTION NO. 695-92  Re: AN AMENDMENT TO THE PROPOSED POLICY ON SEXUAL HARASSMENT

On motion of Mr. Ewing seconded by Mrs. Fanconi, the following resolution was adopted unanimously by members present:

Resolved, That the proposed policy on sexual harassment be amended in B. Issue to add "resulting in criminal penalties as has occurred in some cases already decided" to "Some forms of sexual harassment may also constitute criminal conduct."

Mrs. Fanconi made the following comment for the record:

"I probably am not going to be making many comments on this policy, and that is not because I lack interest in the policy. I think Board members have done a lot of corresponding back and forth. I have met with staff. Ana has met with staff. Other Board members may have as well. I think it has been something that as far as I am concerned has already reflected a great deal of comment by Board members, and staff has been very responsive to concerns that I have. The important thing to me is to have a policy that sets a very strong statement about what we think appropriate behavior is in the area of sexual harassment, what the consequences are, and then to turn it over to the superintendent and have him bring back the regulations that would stipulate the kinds of training and education that would go on around it. From talking to staff, I know that discussions are already going on around that. I feel fairly comfortable with the policy that we have. I just wanted to clarify this."

Sexual Harassment

A. PURPOSE

To affirm the Board of Education's opposition to sexual harassment in the Montgomery County public school system

To establish explicitly the responsibilities of all MCPS employees and students by defining conduct which constitutes prohibited and inappropriate behaviors

To create a mandate to develop educational programs designed to help MCPS employees and students recognize, understand, prevent, and take corrective action to end sexual harassment

To establish the framework for effective procedures for addressing harassment complaints

B. ISSUE

Inappropriate sexual conduct will not be tolerated and may constitute sexual harassment. Sexual harassment is an unlawful form of discrimination on the basis of sex under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended in 1972 and 1991, Title IX of the Education Amendment of 1972, and Article 49B of the Annotated Code of Maryland. Some forms of sexual harassment may also constitute criminal conduct resulting in criminal penalties as has occurred in some cases already decided.

By issuing a single, comprehensive policy statement, the Board of Education seeks to clarify and reaffirm its commitment to ensuring that all MCPS employees and students are provided with a work and learning environment that is free of sexual harassment.
C. POSITION

MCPS does not condone or tolerate any form of sexual harassment of, or by, staff or students.

MCPS is committed to creating and maintaining an environment in which all persons who participate in school programs and activities can be together in an atmosphere free of all forms of sexual harassment. Specifically, everyone shall be informed that MCPS does not condone or tolerate any form of sexual harassment of or by staff, and that such behavior is prohibited both by law and MCPS policy. Everyone shall also be informed that MCPS does not condone or tolerate any form of sexual harassment or other inappropriate behavior of a sexual nature by students and that such behavior is prohibited by MCPS policy. The superintendent is directed to make every effort to make certain that everyone affected shall be informed of its provisions. It is the intention of MCPS to take whatever action may be needed to prevent, correct, and, if necessary, discipline behavior which violates this policy.

It is the responsibility of every supervisor and principal to recognize acts of sexual harassment and take necessary action to ensure that such instances are addressed swiftly, fairly, and effectively. Consequently, all MCPS administrative and supervisory staff in schools, offices, and other facilities shall be cognizant of, and responsible for, effectively implementing the sexual harassment complaint resolution procedures established in this policy.

1. Definition

Sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other inappropriate verbal, written, or physical conduct of a sexual nature that takes place under any of the following circumstances:

a. When submission to such conduct is made, explicitly or implicitly, a term or condition of employment, instruction, or participation in other school activities

b. When submission to or rejection of such conduct by an individual is used by the offender as the basis for making personnel or academic decisions affecting the individual subjected to sexual advances
c. When such conduct has the effect of unreasonably interfering with the individual's work and/or academic performance or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work or learning environment

2. Application to Employees

This policy applies to all sexual harassment incidents involving MCPS employees. It addresses incidents committed by a person of either sex against a person of the opposite or same sex. It also establishes that it is against policy and recognizes that it may be unlawful for MCPS employees to commit acts of sexual harassment.

3. Application to Students

Sexual harassment committed by students of either sex against students of the opposite or same sex constitutes inappropriate behavior. All allegations will be investigated by the principal using the guidelines of Section E of this policy. Depending on the severity of the offense, appropriate disciplinary action, from counseling to suspension or expulsion, can be taken using the discipline policies adopted by the Board of Education.

4. Examples

Sexual harassment, under certain circumstances, may include, but is not limited to any unwelcome behavior with sexual overtones which is intimidating or offensive to the recipient or observer of the behavior such as: grabbing, touching, patting; sexual propositions; repeated requests for dates; sexually offensive pictures, magazines, calendars, cartoons, or jokes; unwanted flirtations or advances; verbal abuse; subtle pressure or requests for sexual activities; rewards for granting sexual favors or the withholding of rewards for refusal to grant sexual favors; graphic or verbal comments about an individual's body or dress; or sexually degrading names.

Re: SUPERINTENDENT'S COMMENTS ON THE OPENING OF SCHOOL

Dr. Vance noted that on August 31 the staff had done a more than adequate presentation on the opening of school. He believed that everything was on an even keel. He pointed out that the Board had received a copy of the new back-to-school brochure entitled, "A Commitment to Quality."
Re: BOARD/SUPERINTENDENT COMMENTS

1. Dr. Vance commented that last week he and Mrs. Hobbs had attended a meeting with Councilmember Michael Subin, former State Board of Education President Larry Shulman, and an executive from IBM. The purpose of the meeting was another effort to develop a project to invite greater business involvement in reviewing the management structure of MCPS with an eye towards greater efficiency. Dr. Vance had identified the areas of financial management, data processing, systems development, facilities management, logistics, transportation, personnel, program management, etc. He was planning a breakfast meeting in mid-October with a selected group of officers of major corporations in Montgomery County. He would keep the Board posted.

2. Mr. Ewing noted that the Board had received a request from the chair of the Education Foundation involving a proposal to seek grant support for the foundation's efforts to develop its capabilities to both expand the foundation and to organize and expand fund raising. Under new business, he would request that the Board vote to send a letter supporting this effort.

3. Mr. Ewing pointed out that on August 31, the Board had voted on a consent item about a renegotiation of telephone contracts which had associated with it a very substantial savings to the school system. Time did not permit the opportunity to note this, but he wanted to compliment staff for this effort which was consistent with efforts to continue to find ways to reduce costs.

4. Dr. Vance reported that on Thursday, October 1, the Task Force on Gender Equity in Athletics would hold a public hearing in the CESC from 4 to 5:30 p.m. and later on from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Later in the month of October, forums would be held on the budget to give participants an overview of the budget and an opportunity to comment on issues, priorities, and concerns relative to the formation of the school system's budget. These forums would be held at Einstein, Wootton, Watkins Mill, and Sherwood high schools.

5. Mrs. Brenneman called attention to the information item on safety and security. She complimented the superintendent on the progress that had been made, and she suggested that this document be shared with principals so that it could be shared with communities on back-to-school night.

6. Mrs. Fanconi inquired about the participation of the Board in the budget forums because she would be out of town sometime during October. Dr. Vance indicated that Board members were invited but had no specific role to play in the forums.

7. Mrs. Hobbs acknowledged the efforts of Dr. Vance and MCPS staff in the emergency aid effort for victims of Hurricane Andrew. MCPS had joined with the Red Cross and the Salvation Army in gathering items to be sent.

8. Mrs. Hobbs said that the Board continued to be very concerned about Question A, the Ficker Amendment. The Board would do everything possible to oppose this charter amendment. Last week they had received a budget briefing from Gene Lynch, and today they were joining with MCEA, MCCPTA, MCAASP, and MCCSSE in a unified position in opposition to Question A.

9. Mr. Sims reported that he had been working on a television show with Cable Channel 52/60. They would produce a show that would air once a month. He would host the show, and it would be a communication with students. The first show would be taped on October 19, and the subject was the budget. The name of the show would be "Student Voices and Views." He hoped that the show would continue throughout the next several years.

10. Mr. Sims commented that on September 23 the first MCR meeting would be held with Board of Education candidates. He hoped Board members would attend.
