Re: CORPORATE PARTNERSHIP ON MANAGERIAL EXCELLENCE

Mrs. Gordon stated that this discussion was a followup to the July 24, 1995 Board meeting. She invited to the table: Mr. Larry Shulman, Mr. Doug Schiffman, Ms. Georgia Johnson, and Mr. William Youngblood from the Corporate Partnership on Managerial Excellence (CPME). Mrs. Gordon pointed out that at the last meeting there was an overwhelming support for the efforts of the CPME and an interest on the part of Board members in continuing that relationship.

Mr. Ewing expressed his enthusiasm for the CPME. His one concern was that if there was to be a selection of a project on which the CPME would work with the Board, that should be a mutual decision. He felt that the Board should not be engaged in committing resources unless the Board agrees that the activity will be beneficial and of interest to the CPME. Mr. Shulman responded that the business community is a resource to the school system, and that resource would not work on something that was not wanted, appropriate, or helpful.

Dr. Cheung expressed his support for the CPME. He stated that strategic accountability or audits are not looking at financial aspects but in terms of management and leadership as well as future aspects. Mr. Shipman replied that this concept was helpful because they have waited to involve other corporations until there was a sense of areas of expertise.

Mr. Felton affirmed his support of the CPME. His one concern was to encourage the CPME to share what businesses are implementing to become family friendly and relay that to the school system. Mr. Youngblood responded that that is an area where the CPME can bring expertise to the table since a number of companies are working with family issues.

Ms. Gutierrez stated that the CPME has been valuable and successful. The Board should continue to work on the concept of a true partnership. She liked the proposal for a more formal structure but wants to retain some of the informal flexibility that could include all corporations wishing to contribute expertise to the school system. She was concerned about selecting one major project because there may be corporations that had resources to contribute outside that project area. Mr. Shulman answered that the structure of the corporation is unique and built around a notfor-profit operation. The idea of the structure is seven key people who meet on a regular basis with the corporations. Each year, there will be one project and an annual report that everyone will work on but the ad hoc nature of the CPME will continue.

Ms. Gutierrez stated that in the past everyone was involved and she wanted that to continue. She remarked on the composition of the the group of the non-profit identified school system representative and she felt it should be a Board member. The concept was embraced by the Board, and it was actively involved in support of the CPME. Mr. Shulman reacted that if the Board wants to designate a member, the CPME would be delighted to have that person participate on an ad hoc or official basis.

Mrs. King voiced her support for the CPME and stated that it has an important place within the school system.

Mr. McCullough believed that the overall concept was superb. There was concern about the group of seven serving as an executive board and whether or not this group would be a revolving membership in order to add fresh perspectives and ideas. Ms. Johnson replied that there would be a fixed term and an automatic rollover of membership.

Mr. McCullough asked if there were methods to ensure diversity of the corporations within the organization that adequately reflects the populace of the county. Mr. Shulman replied that that would be left up to the Board and the companies that wish to volunteer as part of the CPME with the resources and expertise needed by the school system.

Mr. McCullough voiced his concern over the lack of organizational structure and whether or not the CPME was looking for more structure. Mr. Shulman stated that the CPME was waiting for the Board's reaction and would be delighted for input at any point.

Mr. Ewing thanked the CPME serving as advisors to the Long-Range Planning Committee. He stated that the Board should approve the proposal with the addition of concurrent input from the superintendent and Board of Education at the bottom of page 2 since the Board is committing resources for this endeavor. Mr. Shulman replied that it would be incorporated.

Dr. Vance mentioned that he had indicated to Mr. Shulman his support for the proposal. He encouraged the Board to accept the proposal so that the school system could continue this initiative.

RESOLUTION NO. 714-95 Re: CORPORATE PARTNERSHIP ON MANAGERIAL EXCELLENCE

on motion of Mr. Abrams and seconded by Mr. Felton, the following resolution was adopted with Mr. Abrams, Dr. Cheung, Mr. Ewing, Mr. Felton, Mrs. Gordon, Ms. Gutierrez, and Mrs. King voting in the affirmative; Mr. McCullough voting in the negative.

Resolved, That the Board of Education endorse the concept of the proposal regarding the creation of an independent, not-for-profit corporation to continue efforts of the Corporate Partnership on Managerial Excellence.

Re: 1994-95 REPORT OF THE MONTGOMERY COUNTY ADVISORY COUNCIL FOR CAREER AND TECHNOLOGY EDUCATION

Mrs. Gordon introduced Ms. Jan Geletka, acting director for the Division of Career and Technology Education, and invited her to the table. Ms. Geletka stated that the Advisory Council for Career and Technology Education was very supportive and enthusiastic. She introduced Barry Locke, chairman. Mr. Locke introduced members of the council: Don Hawkins, telecommunications expert and vice chair of the Council; Judy Blumenthal, senior level executive at the Food and Drug Administration; Chris Shinkman, director for the Center for Successful Aging; and Pat Sweeney, principal of the Edison Career Center.

Mr. Locke reported that the Council has no funds, has no staff, and is comprised of a dozen volunteers representing various elements of the community. The Council depends on Montgomery College and the public school system for support. He commended Jack Schoendorfer, former director of Career and Technology Education (CTE), Pat Sweeney, and Susan Gell of Montgomery College for their work with the Council.

Mr. Locke reported that there were two key points relative to the summary of their activities in the initiation of a pilot outreach effort to new Montgomery corporations in the telecommunications industry. In addition to that, the Council is responsible and has been monitoring and responding to proposed federal cutbacks relative to the Perkins funding, JTPA, the School to Work efforts, and monitoring the use of the Perkins funds, all of which are quite essential to this effort. The Council comprised of businesses and program communities collaborated on a project to identify additional regional and governmental agencies that could provide technical and consultant resources to support the CTE mission. The Council initiated a pilot program to interview the presidents and chief executive officers in three targeted areas where there are many jobs developing and to be developed in the years ahead such as telecommunications, medical and health careers, and environment.

Mr. Hawkins explained that the intent was to initiate this as an interview process with some selected business organizations. The main purpose was to identify attributes and skills that those organizations required in their hiring of entry-level positions. The Council had another purpose to solicit more active partnerships and arrangements with these organizations if, in fact, they were so willing. The Council selected organizations from a number of industries that were identified as being high growth. Those that the Council felt would have requirements for entry-level positions that the Montgomery County public school system graduates could identify with and go into and had their principle organizations in Montgomery County or its environs. The Council started a pilot program and identified within the telecommunications area four organizations. The Council developed information necessary to conduct interviews with these four companies. The very limited sample produced a couple of points: (1) non-college bound students are not given the emphasis that some of the organizations thought they should have in the school system, and (2) even though they were high growth industries, the actual percentage of new hires who were of high school level was not that great.

Mr. Locke moved to the Perkins Committee and funding. After thorough review and analysis of this issue and a thorough briefing by Jan Geletka, the Council made the following recommendation to continue support for the career development program which allows students to fulfill their graduation requirements and prepare them both for postsecondary education and employment. The Council stands ready to support endeavors relative to the acquisition of funds whether it be from private sources, foundations, corporations, other governmental jurisdictions or wherever it can play a role to make certain that this program maintains its previous drive and success. The Council made a recommendation that MCPS place a high priority on funding career preparation programs and provide the resources needed to offer a comprehensive career preparation program that is accessible and appropriate for all students. The Council emphasized that the changing demographics in the county necessitates the need for special help for students who come here with a limited education. The Council recommend that MCPS maintain the same level of service for CTE programs in FY96.

Rather than come up with an annual workplan, the Council developed a three-year workplan with ten points. Mr. Locke emphasized the ongoing initiative for CTE, teachers who meeting with business leaders, increasing the number of business executives participating in the activities, and increasing the opportunities for students to participate in work-based experiences. The support and expansion of the activities and relationship between MCPS and Montgomery College continues to develop. The level of cooperation of the last four or five years is certainly a greater stimulus for us to continue efforts of assistance to the college and MCPS. The council is willing to investigate funding options for CTE programs with private foundations, corporations and other governmental jurisdictions.

It is a sense of the Council that the community has a responsibility to teach and educate all youngsters and inculcate them with a sense of knowledge. The point is that whatever students learn today or not learn will be with them forever and will have an effect on their entire lives. The community especially from the business community must have a sense of crisis. There needs to be the excitement, the energy, the emphasis, and the electricity of a critical situation because a critical situation does exist in terms of employment for our youngsters.

Finally, Mr. Locke stated that there needs to be a collaboration and cooperation in a working compass point for our students so that they can be directed to the proper future.

Mr. McCullough commended the Council and how it showed that with community involvement many things are possible. The Councills representation is very diverse in that it represents the county and the school system at large. He saw in that organization a great opportunity for growth, a help to the community, and wish them continued success.

Mr. Ewing observed that the workplan has a statement on investigating funding options for the CTE program with private foundations and corporations. He questioned if an assessment of the opportunities had been done and what the possibilities might be by investing some time and energy.
Mr. Locke pointed out that the three-year plan was approved at its most recent meetings and has not been initiated. He believed that foundations, as is the case with many corporations -- medium and small businesses -- are well aware of the problems that are confronting the county and nation. The future is intertwined with what the council is trying to do in putting together a proper package for funding with the direct support of the Board of Education as active partner.

Mr. Ewing suggested that MCPS created the Education Foundation for receiving funds from businesses and other foundations and through its structure funds benefit the public schools.

Mr. Felton thanked the Council for their continued work in this area. In discussions with parents and community groups throughout the county, there is a reluctance to accept that, in some cases denial, that Montgomery County has many, many students who would benefit much more from programs that are geared toward non-college bound students. He asked if the County had any discussions on how the Board and Council might be greater advocates and gain greater community support for these kinds of programs without it being viewed as negative.

Mr. Hawkins stated that when talking to business representatives that need came across and the challenge is to identify and propagate to the general public to let them know what, in fact, businesses are requiring.

Mr. Locke remarked that was a very fascinating question because his experience had shown that businesses seem to be concerned about the lack of commitment on the part of youngsters, i.e., the commitment to show up at work on time; the commitment to put in a day’s work for a day’s pay; the vision for a future with a particular company. In that sense, it has to initially come from parents and persuade them to understand what is happening in society.

Mr. Hawkins stated that the pilot interviews of businesses identified honesty, trustworthiness, willingness to work hard, initiative, and competitiveness as desirable traits. Other requirements were related to communications with the ability to speak clearly and well, to write clearly and well, and to work in teams. This cut across all the companies regardless the business.

Ms. Gutierrez stated that she was very interested in the work of the Council and congratulated them on their efforts. She was quite concerned about their observations about misperceptions as to the quality of education -for students and the small percentage of entry-level jobs that are available. With this enormous rush to downsize, to reduce staff, and to increase profits, work opportunities have been significantly reduced at all levels and there has been a depression of positions, high-skill positions, high-paid positions. This is incredibly serious because it not only reflects on the immediate opportunity for gainful employment and gaining new skills and growth, but it shows a depression in our economic capability and economic well-being not only for our local community but our state and our nation as a whole.

In regard to the Perkins Committee, Ms. Gutierrez pointed out that federal level funding has been reduced. The Council’s recommendations talk about maintaining a dialogue with county and state elected officials regarding funding issues for career and technology, and she encouraged the Council also have a dialogue with the federal. Ms. Gutierrez highlighted two points in the long-range: (1) increase the number of opportunities for students to participate in work-based experiences either already in school or after school are key as well as (2) engaging the Board and the system in real strong advocacy for these programs.

Mr. Locke agreed with Ms. Gutierrez about the decrease in jobs and the lack of employment opportunities for people who want to work. There is a new director of the office of Economic Development here in Montgomery County and he presumed that the Board or appropriate representatives would be meeting with him, if not already, and stress upon him the urgency to not only get new businesses into the county and help those who are presently here expand but also to direct them to pay attention to programs so that they can help create the jobs that will enable youngsters to obtain gainful employment.

Dr. Cheung thanked the Council for their efforts. His viewpoint is that every student should learn at least one employable skill whether or not he or she is going to go to college. He thought that was important because by learning skills with a body of knowledge chances for employment are advanced. If educators are able to give students a foundation of employable skills, at least a person would be employable and pursue one's goal into higher education.

Ms. Blumenthal stated that at her agency, Food and Drug Administration, has taken measures to help students learn skills in a student volunteer program. Students come in and learn work and behavioral skills that can be used on their resumes.

Mrs. King agreed with Dr. Cheung about employable skills. There are a lot of students who are ready for the work force when they graduate from high school and do not plan on college. MCPS needs to prepare those students. Somehow it needs to be communicated to parents and students that there is nothing wrong with being a plumber, electrician, or construction worker. These professionals are respectable jobs. Mrs. King stated that this is something the Board has to keep looking at not to only educate students but educate them in a way that they are prepared to have a meaningful life after their formal education.

Mrs. Gordon thanked the Council and stated her appreciation the time and effort that they had put into the report to help the students of Montgomery County.

Re: DISCUSSION WITH THE CONSTRUCTION TRADES AND AUTOMOTIVE TRADES FOUNDATION

Mr. Jay Davies, president of the Construction Trades Foundation, reported that there are currently five program offerings at the Edison Career Center in construction trades technology: carpentry, electricity, heating/ventilation/air conditioning, masonry, and plumbing. Students in all programs participate in building a house each year. The Edison construction trades programs are designed to assist students in developing the skills needed to lead directly into the job market or to continue their education at Montgomery College. In each program, students are taught competencies identified from industry standards such as mathematics, reading, listening, oral communications and writing skills. All programs infuse national building, electrical, plumbing and other related codes into the curriculum to ensure that the students are prepared to work anywhere in the country.

Mr. Davies described the students participation in a career fair at Edison where the students talk with future employers. Students are given the opportunity to experience first hand what it is like to work in some of the areas through field trips, special construction projects and summer work experience.
The Construction Trades Foundation is a partnership between private business and the school system that benefits students. Mr. Davies expressed concerns about losses in classroom curriculum offerings in some high schools. The foundation is best used when there are classes in interior design, architecture, business accounting, and drafting and design. The foundation has excellent press coverage and the school system made a video on the construction of the student-built house.

Mr. Rick Shaub, president of the Automotive Trades Foundation, reported that the mission Automotive Trades Foundation is to develop and maintain a partnership between the school system and the business community to create a curriculum that combines classroom and real life experience that will equip the student with the necessary skills to achieve excellence in their chosen career.

Mr. Shaub stated that the mini-dealership involves three programs: auto technology, collision repair, and auto services assistant program. The Auto Trades Foundation has made significant contributions in redesigning the instructional delivery system and the transition from school to work program. The emphasis is on a school learning experience that replicates the real world. The students time is split between the classroom and the lab. In the classroom, students apply principles of math and science to the study of automotive theory and in the lab the students diagnose, repair and refurbish donated vehicles that are eventually sold. At this point, the students learn MVA paperwork and customer relations.

Mr. Shaub related that students participate in a shadowing program for two days in a dealership working with technicians. Last year, the students participated in a trouble shooting competition in New York. The foundation also provides funds for tools and equipment. The students are also taught interpersonal skills such as interviewing, resume writing, and conflict resolution. The payoff for the business community is that they are able to fill vacancies with personnel who have technical training and interpersonal skills.

Mr. Ewing stated that the foundations have continued to grow and thrive and produce outstanding results for students. The students are grateful because they get an opportunity to obtain skills for a lifetime of work.

Dr. Cheung observed that the efforts of the two foundations are outstanding, and he wished that more students would take advantage of these opportunities.

Mr. Felton referred to Mr. Davies' statement and asked if employment was monitored to determine if employment is continued. Mr. Shaub responded that the demand for trained students far exceeds the supply. He stated that the biggest problem is public perception and the attitudes of parents which needs to be addressed. They are seeking solutions to enable more students to participate. Mr. Davies stated that they do not track students but the Edison Career Center has a school-to-work transition team that does track students.

Ms. Gutierrez commended trades foundations and their beneficial work. She asked if there was anything the Board could do that would help the foundations through policies to reach more students. Mr. Shaub pointed out that students working at dealerships are not covered by insurance. Ms. Geletka reported that in other programs the students are paid and, therefore, eligible for workmen's compensation. She also stated that in national models there is generally a school-to-work office and funds insurance and workmen's compensation. She hoped that the school system would obtain the grant for this purpose. Mr. Davies commented that the East Layhill site will be turned over to the Construction Trades on which houses will be built and the County Council must give final approval. The students design the house and without architectural courses there is a significant impact with less entries of designs. There were also no woodshops where cabinets were built.

Mrs. Gordon stated that the changes in the course offerings were not budget reductions but, in fact, had to do with the change in the mandates from the state and technology education.

Mr. Shulman also pointed out that in the past there was a teacher that indirectly recruited students for these programs and bring elementary and middle school students to observe the construction and automotive trades.

Re: BOARD/SUPERINTENDENT COMMENTS

Mr. McCullough thanked the Board for its continuing efforts to hear the voices of students. There will be annual meetings with MCR and MCJC that represents students throughout Montgomery County.
Mr. Ewing commented that people in the Montgomery Blair High School were startled to learn that the decision on the Kay Tract has not been made and this is extraordinarily frustrating to people. It was his hope that Mr. Porter would announce his decision this week. The school system is spending money on the design of the new high school and, if the decision is reversed, that will result in substantial loss.
