Re: BOARD/SUPERINTENDENT COMMENTS

Dr. Vance reported that eight students had won awards in the 1998 National Achievement Scholarship program conducted by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. David Chia, a fourth grade teacher, had received the Agnes Meyer Outstanding Teacher award. A recent survey of more than 800 employers in Montgomery County showed a high degree of satisfaction with MCPS students that they have hired as part of the Cooperative Work Experience.
Mr. Ewing noted the following: (1) Dr. Vance had clarified that all of Zone 33 in the Blair Cluster that was inside the city limits of Takoma Park was assigned to Takoma Park Elementary School. Zone 33 North that was outside Takoma Park was assigned to East Silver Spring Elementary School; however, those students may choose which school they wanted to attend. The Wayne Avenue Capital Budget project had undergone a number of changes due to the expectations of student enrollment and facility requirements. (2) There once was a time when the Board’s policy stated that day care was the highest priority for available space in elementary schools, but the policy only had impact when there was space. This issue had come to the Board’s attention through Rock View Elementary School where there was no space for day care after modernization and the utilization of a holding school, such as English Manor which is a day care provider. The Board needs to address the issue of day care and its provision for the needs of the community. (3) There are concerns of the Anti-Defamation League about charter schools. The league has dealt with charter schools across the country and they detect separation of church and state issues with the application of criteria for the selection of charter schools. He hoped that the Superintendent would contact the League for advice on the issue.

Mr. Felton announced that he had attended the Construction Trades Foundation’s dinner. He commended the Foundation for their success over the years. Also, he attended the anniversary of the Teen Court which is a new program within the county supported by MCPS and attorneys throughout the county. This program focuses on the judicial system.

Ms. Gutiérrez commented that many of the Board members attended the National School Board Association’s annual conference. It was an opportunity to benchmark the school system with other districts. Also, the County Council would hear from the community on the school system’s operating budget. She encouraged the community to contact the Council with their views on the budget. It was essential in the time of surplus funds that the community focus on education and the Board’s initiatives.

Mrs. King reported that she was impressed by the business leaders testifying before the Council regarding the school system’s operating budget.

Re: MONTHLY FINANCIAL REPORT

Mr. Bowers pointed out changes from the last report especially revenue. There had been a supplemental from the county related to the Year 2000 and computer software, deferred maintenance, and state revenue related to special education. There were no changes in the expenditures from last month except for special education where the projected deficit had been reduced by $500,000.

Dr. Spatz reported that the County Council’s Education Committee had expressed concern about categorical transfers especially from instructional services to non-instructional services. Mr. Subin had introduced a resolution that would disapprove of such transfers.

In regard to that resolution, Ms. Signer asked if there had been discussion about Category 6, Special Education, that included instructional and non-instructional funds. Dr. Spatz replied that that was a concern because resolutions in the past have excluded Category 6. However, categories had not been defined in the resolution.

Mr. Felton pointed out that in Category 3, Instructional Salaries, the surplus of $300,000 represents a very small percentage of the total budget. Mr. Bowers responded that an instructional day represents $2.5 million, and the entire category for the year is $400 million.

Ms. Gutiérrez suggested that the Board communicate to the Council its concerns since a resolution had been introduced. The school system should define those categories as instructional or non-instructional rather than the Council. If the Council will not approve transfers, there will be deficits in certain categories. Mr. Bowers pointed out that the resolution did not suggest that there would be no transfers. It just affected transfers out of instructional categories, but that has not been defined.

Mrs. King was not convinced that a letter was necessary because the Board could work with the Council.

Dr. Cheung stated that the financial monitoring report should be a management tool which shows a comparative analysis of current projections with historical projections. He also suggested that the report should indicate percentages of surplus/deficit to the overall budget.

Mr. Ewing pointed out that a resolution affecting transfers had never been proposed before. No one suggested the same restrictions for the Planning Board, the college, or other departments within the county government. Dr. Spatz replied that there was a need for a parallel policy.

Mr. Ewing stated that the time could come when the Board would be unable to make transfers in order to balance the budget, thereby being in violation of the law. He hoped that the Superintendent would review this situation carefully with the school system’s attorneys.

Ms. Signer shared some of the concerns expressed by her colleagues. However, she supported the intent of the Council’s resolution. She did not want the school system to transfer money out of instructional categories for non-instructional expenses. If there was a deficit in a specific category, the school system could request a supplemental appropriation. The Council understood that and believed that it was a more realistic approach rather than shifting categories at the end of the year.

Mr. Ewing stated that he did not know of many governmental bodies that did not adjust at the end of the year based on the fact that some categories do not cover expenditures. Therefore, adjustments are required.

Mr. Felton stated that the budget was a guide for the expenditure of funds, and there should be some flexibility within and between categories.

Ms. Signer replied that a budget was not just a guide because it set the priorities for the school system. Last year, there was a surplus of over $1 million in the instructional salaries’ category, and that was an amount equal to the class size initiative.

Re: SECTION F-3 IN REGULATION JFA-RA, STUDENT RIGHTS AND RESPONSIBILITIES AND REGULATIONS IID-RA, PROGRAMS TO CABLECAST ON THE MCPS EDUCATION CHANNELS AND CONTENT AND TECHNICAL GUIDELINES FOR PROGRAMS SUBMITTED FOR CABLECASTING ON THE MCPS EDUCATION CHANNELS

Dr. Vance asked the following people to the table: Dr. Hiawatha B. Fountain, associate superintendent for the Office of Pupil and Community Services; Ms. Kathy McGuire, director of the Department of Comprehensive Pupil Services; Dr. Pam Splaine, coordinator of the Policy and Records Unit; and Judith Bresler, general counsel. The regulation was updated in July 1997 to reflect changes in the state and federal law. School staff and Board members voiced concerns of Section F.3. He agreed that the language needed clarification and more definition.

Ms. Wheat addressed the issue of shared values and noted that there was a difference in our society as to the interpretation by students and adults. If a student journalist wrote an article on teen sex and focused on the education students, it could be perceived in conflict of shared values if adults believed in abstinence. Therefore, there was no reason to include shared values. Section D’s reference to balanced reporting did not need to be in the regulation. If there was an overwhelming response for the students with a one-sided position, there would be the need to present the opposing side. Most student journalists present a well-balanced article and controversy sparks an interest in the topic.

Mr. Felton referred to Section D of IID-RA, as amended by staff, and asked if that language could be used to substitute in the Regulation JFA-RA at 3. Ms. Bresler stated that the Board had a lot of discretion in establishing parameters, and the Board could make them the same. However, the Board should consider its Decision and Order and case law that drew a distinction between school-sponsored communications and curriculum. The Board had authority to exercise the direction of the curriculum. Cable TV, which the Board had defined as an extension of the curriculum, was different from a student newspaper and the guidelines that regulate student publications. The Tinker standard addressed speech that causes a disruption of the education environment that would be ongoing.

Ms. Signer was still troubled by JFA-RA even though there were some improvements. She thought the school system had a long way to go to make the regulation what it should be. She understood that Hazelwood gave the school system the authority to regulate school-sponsored speech to a greater degree than private speech. The fact that the school system could do it legally did not mean that it should do it morally. She was troubled by the lesson that MCPS was giving students when speech was regulated to the degree that has been choosen. She subscribed to the dissent in Hazelwood in that students expected a civics lesson and not learning to write a paper and honing their writing skills. She thought Regulation JFA-RA at Section F.3 was not clear. She was troubled by F.3.a)(1)d and thought it should be struck since it might be appropriate to write an article that was one-sided. At the appropriate time, she would offer amendments to the regulation.

Ms. Gutiérrez wanted to step back and examine how the Board had reached this point. She was concerned that the Board was trying to fix something that did not need fixing. She agreed with many of the comments by the students during Public Comments. There had been a unique occurrence in Montgomery County where MCPS created a climate of the excellence in instruction and learning since students have been held to the highest expectations and they stepped up to it. The school system was moving toward unnecessary control and tying the hands of the instructors. She would hate to limit students’ freedom of expression. Language is powerful and that was why the Board was having this discussion. Ms. Gutiérrez was surprised when she saw the regulation and it had not been passed before the Board in a visible way. That was not the way she wanted the Board to operate. If there are controls, it should be done in public. She did not understand what the destination was based on the medium used. The medium was the definer and not the educational content. She wanted the Board to get back to an open policy statement without tinkering with guidelines or regulations. The policy stated the intent of the Board, and the Superintendent implemented the policy.
Mr. Ewing thought that it might be advisable if the Board took additional time and asked journalists for some advice. He wanted to make sure what the Board’s decision produced balance between the accountability for reassuring that the school system did not sponsor activities that violate the law and still maintained a climate of free expression. Balance has to be sought within broad bounds and assures that any limitation on free speech was justified and cannot be seen as an abridgement of free speech. The language in JFA-RA F.3. was not sufficiently clear. Student publications might not be approved if it advocated drug or alcohol use, etc. That was clearer and did not raise shared values. The balance would be in the news stories. They need not be advocates. All publications need to distinguish between opinion and fact, and Mr. Ewing wanted that in the regulation. There were two different kinds of activities in-house as different from cable, but he did not see the distinction.

Dr. Cheung looked at the issue as the Board’s responsibility for the curriculum to educate students. The teachers were an important part of implementing policy since the students cannot learn by themselves. The Board had to look at these issues because the means of communications are different. It would be important to bring the teachers into this discussion.

Re: REPORT AND RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE EARLY CHILDHOOD TASK FORCE

Dr. Vance invited the following people to the table: Ms. Nancy Schneider, chair; and task force members Ms. Julie Bader, supervisor, Child Find/Early Childhood Disabilities Unit; Ms. Kathy McGuire, director, Department of Comprehensive Pupil Services; and Ms. Pam Prue, director, Division of Early Childhood Services. Other members of the task force were in the audience and introduced by Ms. Schneider.

Charting the Right Course for the First Five Years, the Report and Recommendations of the Early Childhood Task Force on Meeting the Needs of Young Children and Their Families in Montgomery County was presented. This task force was established in February, 1997, to make recommendations for children ages 0-5 so that they have the necessary health care, nutrition, and early childhood programs they need to be successful at school.

Ms. Schneider reported that Montgomery County families with children from birth to age five need access to an integrated system of information and services designed to make sure all children are "ready to learn" when they enter school at age five. Programs and services within this system should be based on models that promote prevention and early intervention. They should address children's and families' needs in the areas of health, housing, education, family support, and child care services.

Through surveys and study, the Early Childhood Task Force developed six recommendations that, if implemented, would go a long way toward meeting the needs of our county’s very young children. The recommendations were aimed at protecting children from many health, behavior, and social problems that could become increasingly more serious as they grow older.

The Montgomery County Early Childhood Task Force presented the results of their work to Montgomery County policy makers including the: County Executive, County Council, Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Housing Opportunities Commission, and the Collaboration Council. They planned to share it with other stakeholders including: families, businesses, and the faith and civic communities.

RECOMMENDATION ONE

Develop a comprehensive data collection system that contains accurate information on:

- The demographics of Montgomery County children, including trends
- Types of services provided, for whom, at what cost
- Program eligibility requirements
- Reporting procedures
- Program performance measures and indicators

RECOMMENDATION TWO
Reorder and reallocate resources for prevention and intervention to address the needs of families with children from birth to age five, with special emphasis on children from birth to age three.

RECOMMENDATION THREE
Replace the Montgomery County Early Childhood Advisory Council and other early childhood advisories with an Interagency Early Childhood Committee. This committee would function under the Collaboration Council, which sets the agenda for children and families in Montgomery County. It would report directly to the Collaboration Council and regularly to the Executive, County Council, Board of Education, Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and the public on the status of young children.

The Interagency Early Childhood Committee would be charged with carrying out the recommendations of the report and have the responsibility and authority to:
- Develop measures for outcomes and benchmarks
- Develop a system for program evaluation
- Expand and direct the collection of data
- Recommend budget allocations and priorities based on a comprehensive view of needs
- Prepare an annual report on the status of young children from birth to age five
- Reach out to and include local stakeholders in decisions affecting their communities

The Committee must include representatives of family, community, business, government, school system, faith, and provider organizations committed to the goal of school readiness by age five for all children.

RECOMMENDATION FOUR
To the greatest extent possible, use a single standard of financial eligibility for County-funded services. In order to reflect the real cost of living in Montgomery County programs should use the Minimum Standard of Need (MSON) established by the Community Action Board. That is, all families earning less than the MSON should be eligible for programs that will enable them to meet the needs of their children -- either at no cost or on a sliding scale proportionate to income.

Aggressively pursue additional federal and state funding targeting young children, such as Child Care and Development Funds and the State Child Health Insurance Plan. These funding sources have potential long-term benefits to the County’s children.

Lobby federal and state agencies to recognize the Minimum Standard of Need in Montgomery County.

RECOMMENDATION FIVE
Develop a comprehensive system of outreach and support to inform parents, families, and caregivers about the critical importance of early childhood brain development.

RECOMMENDATION SIX
Public and private caregivers of young children and home visitors working with families with young children should be trained specifically directed to nurturing early brain development. Standards of caregiver training that allow for local community values and needs should be established.

Incentives should be developed for child care providers to become accredited by nationally-recognized organizations with professional standards that are more demanding than minimum state licensing requirements. Affordable continuing education and consultation in child development, health, mental health, and parent involvement should be made accessible for all providers.

Ms. Signer asked about prevention and remediation that could be provided to children earlier than when they enter school system programs. She asked for details on what the school system should or could be doing that it was not. Ms. Schneider responded that health and special education problems could be cured or reduced if discovered early in a child’s life. Some mental health problems begin early and lead to drop outs or behavioral issues when the child becomes an adolescent.

Ms. Signer stated that she was looking for how the school system might create a nexus for children not in the system. Those students that needed special education services were sometimes brought to the school system for services prior to kindergarten. That would not be an affirmative action by the school system. She wanted to know how the school system could insert itself into the identification process prior to providing services. Ms. Schneider hoped that the Early Childhood Committee would identify a process with collaboration between all county agencies.

Beyond the school system representatives serving in the advisory council, Ms. Signer asked what the school system could provide toward this effort in the short- and long-term. Ms. Schneider stated that the important contributions would be data collection, benchmarks, communication with the community on early childhood issues, and reordering and reallocating resources to avoid duplication.
Mr. Felton thanked the committee for focusing on practical recommendations. He asked how the county moves from the recognition of research and recommendations to a defined program for action. He asked what was the strategy for building the county’s agenda so that it was not just an overwhelming project. Ms. Schneider replied that the committee was promoting the concepts of the report and the priority of children within Montgomery County. A reordering of resources was called for in the early prevention of childhood afflictions. Public relations and a media campaign would help to educate parents and community members on the learning modality of young children. There was a need for funds to further the recommendations in the report. The first step would be data collection.

Mr. Felton asked where the accountability was for moving the report forward. Ms. Schneider responded the County Executive had designated a staff person to continue the work. It was evident that MCPS staff support was essential for data collection and public relations. The County Executive promised more support for Health and Human Services to lead the effort to implement the report’s recommendations.

Dr. Cheung commended the committee on an important report. Someone must be placed in charge of implementing the recommendations. Children are the future and the recommendations should be set in motion. He asked how the caregivers and grandparents would be informed about early childhood development. Also, he asked what implications and commitment were for the health care industry. He asked if there were partnerships with large companies within Montgomery County. Ms. Schneider stated that Marriott Corporation helped its employees with social problems and had programs for working mothers. She would present the recommendations to the Economic Advisory Council since they should be and want to be a part of the project.

Mr. Ewing was pleased with the report and hoped that the school system would do its part as recommended by the report. Intellectually, everyone recognizes that the first five years of life are critical for childhood development. He hoped that the Board would support the money in the County Executive’s budget to start implementation of the recommendation for data collection. He suggested that the Education Foundation might help with the media campaign because it had received funds for advertising. Mr. Ewing was concerned about the portion of students receiving FARMS and the number of children in poverty. That statistic had increased dramatically over the last 20 years with one child in four receiving FARMS.

RESOLUTION NO. 258-98 Re: REPORT AND RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE EARLY CHILDHOOD TASK FORCE

On motion of Mr. Ewing and seconded by Dr. Cheung, the following resolution was adopted unanimously by members present:

Resolved, That the Board of Education support the money in the County Executive’s budget to begin the data collection.

Re: DISCUSSION

Ms. Wheat left the meeting at this point.

Ms. Gutiérrez commended the committee on the recommendations and presentation of the report. It was very important to get data analysis, but there was data available through the school system and could be extrapolated. The report showed Hispanic children at 9.5 percent of the population, but those children already in the school system were 12.5 percent. In the recommendations, she did not see a sensitivity toward ethnicity which was very important in Montgomery County. The recommendation to put the project under the Collaboration Council may add to the bureaucracy because the interagency approach continued to ignore large portions of the minority population. The mass media campaign was important, but many minority parents cannot read the information and there needed to be a different approach. There needed to be literacy programs as well as parenting programs. There was a need for new money because reordering and reallocating funds would displace other projects.
