Re: BOARD/SUPERINTENDENT COMMENTS

Dr. Weast congratulated teachers Joanne McKernon and Pam Parker who completed the National Board of Professional Teaching Standards with national recognition and credentials in all 50 states. They joined three other teachers – Jean Diamond, Jolynn Tarwater, and Brian Lucas – who had been previously certified.

Ms. Signer had attended a lecture at Montgomery College that was part of the Paul Peck Humanities Institute and heard Morris Dees, the head of the Southern Poverty Law Center. Mr. Dees has spent 30 years fighting racism and other injustices. The Southern Poverty Law Center produces curriculum for schools called, Teaching Tolerance. She hoped that the Superintendent would make the curriculum more widespread throughout MCPS.

Mrs. O’Neill congratulated the three students who were finalist in the national Intel Science Talent Search – Joshua Levi, Elizabeth Epstein, and Jonathan Finnan.
Mr. Felton noted that the Federal Relations Network Conference was held last week. The conference was an opportunity for school board members to meet with members of Congress on educational issues.

Re: BRIEFING BY THE COLLABORATION COUNCIL

Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Ms. Lorraine Rogstad, director of the Collaboration Council; Mr. Larry Pignone, Co-Chair; Ms. Sandra Lyons, System Integration Specialist; and Mr. Terry Farrell, Community Partnership Manager.

Ms. Rogstad explained that the Collaboration Council is a public-private partnership, an independent community-based entity, and a local management board providing leadership and management of systemic change. The Council was charged by the state of Maryland and county officials to be a catalyst, involve the community, marshal resources, assure accountability, remove barriers, promote innovation, and foster collaborative partnerships. It strives to improve outcomes for children and families by targeting select populations to a shared mission and agreed upon outcomes. The Children’s Agenda consists of having stable and economically secure families; children safe in their homes, schools, and communities; healthy children; success for every student; young people making smart choices; and young people ready for the workplace. This agenda will require changes in the way services are delivered and funded, and in the way decisions are made.

The Council’s goals are to achieve better outcomes for families through the Partnership Agreement; savings that support development, prevention, and early intervention; better data, planning, and outcomes through using family well-being measures, Linkages to Learning data, successful collaborative grants, interagency data, and countywide training.

Linkages to Learning, with its unique management structure, is a school-based health, mental health, and social services program, and links services and resources that already exist in schools and communities. Infants and Toddlers, an interagency collaboration for families with developmentally delayed children, provides early development assessment and intervention, and has nine teams made up of MCPS, DHHS, and private sector partners. The Community Partnership is a three-year agreement that focuses on multiple needs, high-end children and youths, family preservation, an MCPS pilot for 6-10-year-old autistic children, and outcome-based services. Community Kids links education support services and public/private health and human services with families and communities. The early childhood initiative will chart the right course for children’s first five years.

Re: DISCUSSION

Mrs. O’Neill noted that collaboration meant changing the pronouns from “my and I” to “ours and we” to make better outcomes for the children of Montgomery County. Children who are in the public schools throughout their school careers spend 9 percent of their lives in the public schools. She was thrilled with the idea of moving Child Find into the communities.

Mr. Felton noted that the Board had focused for many years on the relationship between early childhood development and collaboration with the community. He asked Mr. Farrell about the autism pilot and how funds were more effectively used to expand the number of children served. He asked about the magnitude of the program and the numbers of children that could be reached. Mr. Farrell replied that the pilot was designed to serve 75 children over three years. The number of autistic children in Montgomery County is higher than the national average. The program designed for 6- to 10-year olds is the beginning, because the funding from the Developmental Disabilities Administration does not begin until there is a gap in programming with children ages 10 to 18. Eight to 10 children are presented for screening every two weeks.

Mr. Felton remarked that local school boards are held accountable for the performance of students, and early childhood education would help students be more successful in the long term. He asked the Council what it would suggest to ensure that the community understands that concept and to have an increased focus on skill building for young children. Ms. Lyons responded that if early childhood programs expose parents to knowledge about nurturing, their children’s learning increases with a developmental progression. There is a need for a network of services and support at different levels with a continuum. The school system must be invested in this process since its success depends on a child’s readiness to learn.

Mrs. Gordon was excited with the collaboration in Montgomery County. She asked if Linkages to Learning would be placed in all elementary schools in which 63 percent of students are on free and reduced-price meals. Ms. Rogstad stated that the percent and emphasis was developed through the six-year plan.

Mrs. Gordon asked if the three-year agreement was an extension of the systems reform initiative. Ms. Rogstad explained the initial systems reform initiative was a pilot for youngsters with the highest need. Through the Governor’s Task Force, the Council was looking for new ways of bringing state funds into collaboration, and the Community Partnership was formed with an agreement.

Mrs. King was pleased with the progress in collaboration that had been made in Montgomery County.

Ms. Rogstad asked for Board input for the plan of action: what is working, what do people want, and who will be served. Also, they need a Board member on the steering committee.

Re: UPDATE ON EARLY CHILDHOOD COLLABORATION INITIATIVE

Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Dr. Hiawatha Fountain, associate superintendent for the Office of Pupil and Community Services; Mrs. Judie Muntner, interim associate superintendent for the Office of Instruction and Program Development; Dr. Raymond Bryant, director of the Department of Special Education; Dr. Patricia Flynn, director of the Department of Academic Programs; and Ms. Pamela Prue, director of the Division of Early Childhood Services.

On December 13, 1999, a joint session of the Education and Health and Human Services committees of the Montgomery County Council was held to discuss early childhood initiatives. Staff members from Montgomery County Public Schools (MCPS), the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS), and the Collaboration Council were present for the discussion. Mr. Blair Ewing, chair, Health and Human Services Committee, and Mr. Michael Subin, chair, Education Committee, expressed their support for moving ahead with a joint early childhood initiative. While they acknowledged that it would take considerable planning to implement fully the joint early childhood initiative, they asked that systems report back within 60 days on possible options for a structure. Further, they asked that staff address the following questions:

1. What are the criteria for an effective structure and how do your recommended options meet these criteria?
2. What is the role of the Collaboration Council in your recommended options? It is the understanding that a task force is currently examining possibilities for reconfiguring the Collaboration Council. It is important that these two efforts be coordinated and that the final decisions for both the Early Childhood Initiatives and the Collaboration Council be complementary.
3. What are the roles of the Department of Applied Research and Evaluation (MCPS) and Accountability and Customer Services (DHHS), as well as any other existing programs that measure outcomes and performance? How will you develop a data system to collect information for evaluation?
4. How will you accomplish an inventory of programs by July 1, 2000?

A meeting to begin organizing and designing plans, chaired by Dr. Steven Seleznow, Deputy Superintendent for Education, and Mr. Charles L. Short, Director, Montgomery County Department of Health and Human Services, was conducted on January 19, 2000. At the meeting were representatives from the County Executive’s office, the County Council office, MCPS, DHHS, the Department of Recreation, the Department of Public Libraries, the Mental Health Association, the Collaboration Council, the Early Childhood
Committee of the Collaboration Council, the Montgomery County Housing Opportunities Commission, Linkages to Learning, Community Kids, and private day care/nursery school providers.

The goals for the meeting were the following:

1. To clarify the purpose, task, and goals of the group
2. To reach agreement on the underlying assumptions, principles, and outcomes for the Early Childhood System
3. To achieve a common awareness of existing early childhood initiatives on the national, state, and local levels
4. To agree on the basic components of an early childhood system, identify next steps, organize workgroups, and develop a time frame for completion of planning tasks

Those in attendance heard an overview of current Montgomery County early childhood initiatives. The initiatives include Linkages to Learning, Success by Six, Community Kids, Children’s First Initiative, and Early Success.

Following the overview, five subcommittees were established to conduct the work of the committee. The subcommittees and their MCPS co-chairs are as follows:

1. Program and Budget: Dr. Marshall Spatz, co-chair (with Ms. Pamela Prue)
2. Data and Evaluation: Dr. Marlene Hartzman, co-chair
3. Structure: Dr. Steven Seleznow, co-chair (with Dr. Raymond Bryant)
5. Standards: Dr. Patricia Flynn, co-chair

The importance of collaborative work with Montgomery County’s governmental agencies, the Collaboration Council, and private child service providers on behalf of the 60,000 children in Montgomery County, prenatal to age 5, cannot be emphasized enough. Montgomery County Public Schools—through Head Start, Extended Early Elementary Program, Preschool Special Education, Infants and Toddlers Special Education Program, and Parenting Resource Centers—interacts with only 4,000 of those children. If the school system is to raise the bar and close the gap, the entire county must ensure that all young children enter kindergarten with the necessary skills to become successful students. All sectors of the community either have similar initiatives or the desire to support having all children ready for school. A recent article, “What No School Can Do” (New York Times Magazine, January 16, 2000), highlights the need for leadership and collaboration among all child services agencies and institutions to close the achievement gap for children facing obstacles related to poverty, pre-academic experiences, and limited language skills. Efforts in Montgomery County reflect this national perspective on how best to address the challenge of educating and supporting preschool children.

Given the need to prepare the County budget, the County Executive’s staff asked that the Program and Budget Subcommittee complete its work by March 15, 2000. The other subcommittees will complete their work in order to make recommendations to the Board of Education and the County Council by late spring. During this time, the Board of Education will receive periodic updates on the work of the subcommittees and planning groups.

Re: DISCUSSION

Mrs. O’Neill noted that the Board had identified early childhood education as fundamental for success. It was a disappointment that Mr. Duncan did not include early childhood centers in the capital budget. As a former private nursery school teacher, she hoped there would be a list of skill sets that children should master to help them become successful in their school years. Also, she hoped the school system would act on the Collaboration Council’s suggestion to move Child Find into the communities.

Ms. Signer was heartened by the presentations on early childhood education. She believed that collaboration with other county agencies would be the key to success with a continuum of services from pre-birth to kindergarten and beyond. She strongly believed that schools should be one of the focal points for health and social services for children from kindergarten onward, but schools cannot be a focal point for the pre-kindergarten services. It is the responsibility of MCPS to articulate what skills children need upon entering kindergarten and to work with pre-kindergarten providers to assure that children achieve those skills.

Mr. Felton wanted to know of ways to inform the community on appropriate services for early childhood education. He noted that one in six children were in a licensed pre-school program. He was anxious to see the list of kindergarten readiness skills that would be shared with day-care providers. He thought there was a critical relationship between K-12 and pre-kindergarten. He wanted to make it clear that early childhood education was a collaborative structure throughout the community.

Mrs. King was excited about all the different groups coming together to work for the common cause of early childhood education. She asked how the community reaches children in the up-county area when their parents have no idea of what services are available. Ms. Prue responded there would be a countywide public campaign to explain services, including press releases and flyers from MCPS to the schools. Mrs. King reiterated that parents must be involved and receive supports for children to be successful from infancy.
Dr. Weast noted the following three areas that limit early childhood opportunities: the quantity of children, the quality of materials, and accessibility to programs. Pre-kindergarten programs are not the responsibility of the school system, but it is in the best interest of the children that all agencies work together.

On recommendation of the Superintendent and on motion of Mr. Felton seconded by Mr. Abrams, the following resolution was adopted unanimously by members present:

WHEREAS, On December 8, 1998, the Board of Education authorized staff to utilize a construction management process for the Winston Churchill High School modernization project, with work to begin July 1, 1999, and be completed by November 2001; and

Re:  BRIEFING BY THE WORKGROUP ON TEACHER RECRUITMENT, RETENTION, AND CAREER ENHANCEMENT

Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Dr. Roy Settles, principal of Judith A. Resnik Elementary School; Mr. Ray Frappolli, personnel specialist in the Division of Staffing; Mr. Harry Klugel, resource teacher at Stephen Knolls School; and Mr. John Mallonee, social studies teacher at Northwest High School.

The Joint Work Group on Teacher Recruitment, Retention, and Career Enhancement made the following recommendations:
MAJOR RECOMMENDATIONS
1. Establish time for mentors and resource teachers to work with their assigned new teachers, and limit the mentor/new teacher ration to no more than 1:2.
2. Raise the “maximum entry steps” to improve the ability to attract experienced teachers.
3. Design a supplemental pay plan to reward knowledge, skills, and responsibility.
4. Add additional professional, non-instructional days to the teacher work year to provide for more, and differentiated, professional development that does not compete with instructional time.
5. Phase in longevity steps to provide incentive for experienced teachers to remain in the classroom and in teaching.
6. Restructure the tuition assistance program to ensure availability.
7. Develop a multi-year plan for comparability of starting salaries with other professionals with similar qualifications.
8. Increase the number of professional days for new teachers (and their mentors, RTs, IRTs, and instructional support teachers) within the teacher work year to provide for more professional development and preparation for the classroom.

SECONDARY RECOMMENDATIONS
1. Balance required courses for new teachers so they are not all required during the first three years of teaching.
2. Provide interest free ($2,000) salary advances to new hires to help with relocation.
3. Provide incentives for supervising teachers of student teachers by offering a choice of a stipend or free university credit in conjunction with the cooperating university.
4. Increase staffing to assist with the certification process.
5. Conduct job fairs that target candidates of diversity, both locally and in major cities, modeled after the successful special education job fair MCPS held in previous years.
6. Reestablish extensive internal offerings of CPDE accredited courses providing staff development opportunities for MCPS professional staff in such areas as teacher competency, curriculum design, and other needs as identified by the school system and/or professional staff.
7. Affirm support for a position of student teacher coordinator to coordinate and expand the opportunities for student teachers.

OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS
1. Ensure that the Department of Human Resources has sufficient staff and resources (budget, travel, staff, etc.) to carry out aggressive new strategies for recruitment.
2. Establish a mentor program coordinator position to support and train the hundreds of teachers taking on responsibility as new teacher mentors.
3. Establish a career counselor position to assist career development for non-tenured teachers, tenured teachers, and support staff interested in pursuing teacher certification.
4. Establish and advocate for a set of best practices in the treatment of, and expectations for, new teachers in local schools.

5. Provide credit (for placement on the salary schedule) for verifiable, non-traditional experience in select fields.

6. Increase partnerships with cooperating universities.

7. Provide increased financial support for professional development renewal activities: conference registration, fees, and expenses, membership in professional organizations, subscriptions to professional journals.

8. Expand and promote opportunities for retired teachers to return to work part time to fill critical needs and fractional assignments.

9. Encourage MCPS and MCEA to identify relocation assistance fo new hires, including business partnerships.

10. Ensure the availability of telephones, computers, copiers, curriculum material, and restrooms.

11. Encourage MCPS and MCEA to sponsor activities that promote congeniality, collegiality, and networking among teachers who are in like positions countywide, in order to reduce isolation.

Re: DISCUSSION

Mrs. O’Neill was encourage by the report’s proactive thinking to meet the school system’s needs. As MCPS faces the challenge of rising student enrollment and teachers eligible for retirement, Montgomery County was added to the list of Maryland systems identified as having a teacher shortage. Many issues were addressed in the recommendations, with teachers put on a professional footing. One of the big challenges would be funding the recommendations, and this would require collaboration with the County Executive and County Council. The system might have to look at housing opportunities for teachers and encourage them to live in highly impacted areas of the county.

Mr. Felton asked the work group members if they had a sense of what the teacher community, as a whole, had as priorities. Mr. Mallonee said a survey of teachers revealed that they remain in their positions because of an enjoyment of teaching students, personal satisfaction with the job, and respect. Mr. Felton asked which of the 26 recommendations were the highest priority. Mr. Mallonee replied that teachers wanted to be valued and receive fair compensation. Mr. Klugel promised survey information on the work group’s report on recruitment and retention.

Ms. Signer inquired about the need to increase time for mentors and resource teachers to work with assigned new teachers. How did the work group see those two possibilities affecting the amount of time the resource teachers would have to spend in the classroom? What is the appropriate balance of classroom time and staff development and mentoring responsibilities? Mr. Mallonee thought it would be difficult to continue teaching several classes, meet the needs of students, and carry out the responsibilities of mentoring, observations, evaluations, and staff development. Ms. Signer noted that many teachers became resource teachers due to their excellence in the classroom, and the school system did not want to lose that excellence. Mr. Mallonee pointed out that younger teachers need more support. In view of the need to retain teachers, Mr. Frappolli thought it was critical for staff to find time to mentor new teachers.

Regarding the recommendation to design a supplemental pay plan to reward knowledge, skills, and responsibility (KSR), Ms. Signer noted the new teacher evaluation system and shared accountability would focus on student outcomes. She asked if the work group had looked at data to link KSR with improvements in student outcomes. Mr. Klugel responded that KSR is a model that has been implemented across the nation, and the work group would continue to evaluate KSR and student outcomes.

Ms. Signer asked why the work group recommended interest-free, $2,000 salary advances to new hires to help with relocation, rather than a hiring bonus. Mr. Frappolli answered that two things attract teachers to Montgomery County – reputation and salary. Mr. Klugel thought that new teachers were excited about tuition reimbursement.

Mrs. King was concerned that Towson University had a five-year teaching program, especially in light of the teacher shortage. Also, new teachers expend personal funds to make the classroom a welcoming and learning environment, and there should be some system support for those teachers.

Mrs. Gordon was pleased that the recommendations in the report were addressing systemic solutions to the problems of recruitment, retention, and career enhancement. She asked about the recommendation to reestablish extensive internal offerings of CPDE accredited courses providing staff development opportunities for MCPS professional staff in such areas as teacher competency, curriculum design, and other needs identified by the school system and/or professional staff. Would that be part of what the new work group examined? Mr. Klugel replied that it came under an existing joint committee focused on professional development. Within the rationale for the recommendation, Mr. Klugel explained, there was an emphasis on embedded training and not always the same model of professional development.

Mrs. Gordon asked what would happen to the recommendations that were not reviewed by the new work group. Mr. Klugel replied that the recommendations were made to the school system to improve teacher recruitment, retention, and career enhancement. Mr. Bowers replied that staff would formally look at the recommendations and provide a status report to the Board.

Mr. Felton pointed out that teacher recruitment and professional development is a national crisis. In the response to the report, he asked that staff identify any unique Montgomery County issues, since a national solution may not be appropriate. Those solutions would allow the school system to work with the County Council and legislators.

Mrs. Gordon asked about MCPS’s added requirement for 12 credits of math and science for elementary teachers, and if recruiters found new teachers that met those requirements. If they do not have the 12 credits, how willing was MCPS to hire them and provide the training? Mr. Frappolli replied that almost everyone hired falls short of those credits. Staff is looking for quality teachers who are willing to obtain the additional credits to be certified, and potential employees are evaluated on an individual basis. Dr. Settles added that teachers want to be a part of MCPS based on its reputation. Mrs. King thought the courses to obtain the added credits should be spread out over a longer period of time.

Mrs. O’Neill requested that the work group’s report be shared with the County Council and, in particular, the chair of the Education Committee.

Dr. Weast commented that teachers make the difference. The report talked about qualitative issues as well as quantitative issues. He was pleased that in negotiations the salary had been increased because Montgomery County had to stay ahead of other jurisdictions, especially with MCPS’s higher requirements and expectations. Others areas of importance are longevity of employment, affordable housing, lower class size, staff development, and release time.

Re: POLICY IFB, CITIZEN REVIEW OF CURRICULAR AND INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS INCLUDING AN UPDATE ON CURRICULUM AUDIT

Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Mrs. Judie Muntner, interim associate superintendent, Office of Instruction and Program Development; Dr. Patricia B. Flynn, director, Department of Academic Programs; Mr. Jack Schoendorfer, director, Department of Instructional Support Programs; and Dr. Pam Splaine, director, Policy and Records Unit.

On June 21, 1999, on motion of Ms. Signer, seconded by Mrs. Gordon, the Board of Education adopted a resolution to "schedule time late in 1999 for a review of Policy IFB, Citizen Review of Curricular and Instructional Materials.

In response to that motion, staff in the Office of Instruction and Program Development (OIPD) had reviewed the policy. Additionally, a Curriculum Advisory Committee was convened to review the current policy and provide input and recommendations regarding proposed changes. The Curriculum Advisory Committee included representatives from the Montgomery County Council of PTAs, NAACP Parent Council, ESOL Advisory Committee, Superintendent’s Gifted and Talented Advisory Committee, Gifted and Talented Association, principals, teachers, and parents. The group discussed the role of citizens in the development and implementation of curriculum and expressed enthusiasm for the "new era of openness" regarding educational issues. The Curriculum Advisory Committee expressed limited interest in the notion of direct involvement in the development of curriculum but much greater concern over the issue of accessing information about existing curricula.

Dr. Weast directed staff in OIPD to initiate the process of curriculum audits, the results of which will further discussions about changes to the curriculum development process. Given the recommendations of the Curriculum Advisory Committee and the information that will be generated as a result of curriculum audits, he recommended no changes to Policy IFB at this time. Further, many of the concerns relating to the development of curriculum deal with implementation of policy and not the policy itself. Dr. Weast implemented several important changes in existing procedures for curriculum development that were underway.

Three recent practices have been implemented to ensure that Board members are better informed about and participate more thoroughly in the curriculum development process.

1. The Superintendent has directed staff in OIPD to present initial information regarding proposed curriculum development or revisions to the Board of Education and seek its approval to proceed with a formal request for curriculum development or revision to the Council on Instruction (COI). This practice originated in December 1999 with a request to the Board for approval to prepare a kindergarten curriculum revision request to COI. Implementation of that practice will ensure that Board members are informed about proposed curriculum revisions and the rationale for needing such revisions, afford Board members the opportunity to raise specific questions about pending proposals, and signal to the community that proposed changes in a particular content area will be under consideration by COI.

2. Although in the early fall the Board of Education receives an update of initiatives and curriculum development efforts that have occurred over the summer, the Board also will receive a summary of the annual agenda proposed for COI, including a general statement of the proposed revisions, the rationale for the revisions, and the timeline for presenting requests to COI. In that manner, Board members who have questions about a particular proposed revision or a special interest in an individual program area will be prepared to raise questions in advance of the initial presentation to the Board for approval to proceed through the COI process. Board members may wish to attend the COI meeting (all meetings are open to the public) to learn more specific information and raise questions in that forum.

3. In the past, curriculum documents that are forwarded to COI have been posted on FirstClass for public inspection. Beginning in December 1999, hard copies of all COI documents have been forwarded to members of the Board of Education. Those documents include curriculum and related support materials, as well as COI minutes and proposed agendas for future meetings. This effort will continue monthly to ensure that Board members receive comprehensive information about proposed curriculum
When members of the community raised questions about the use of a specific set of instructional materials in support of the revised middle school mathematics program, the Superintendent appointed an independent panel of outside experts to review the materials in question and make recommendations to him about how best to proceed. One of the panel’s recommendations was to invite the public to participate more fully and meaningfully in the curriculum development process. In response to that recommendation, and acknowledging the Board's interest in establishing community-friendly partnerships, the following steps are recommended for implementation.

1. Because staff in OIPD will be coming to the Board of Education to seek approval to proceed through the COI process, one additional way to ensure greater access for review of proposed curriculum documents and instructional materials is to set aside a location in the professional library where any interested member of the community may come to peruse materials and information about proposed curricular revisions, including prime source documents, well in advance of discussions by the Board and COI. Staff also will meet with individuals from the public libraries in Montgomery County to determine their capacity to make space available to display materials. In that manner, information about proposed curriculum and materials will be available broadly for inspection by the public.

2. The curriculum coordinators will establish a Curriculum Advisory Team consisting of parents and community members who will meet regularly to discuss the status of curriculum in MCPS, pre-kindergarten through Grade 12, review the current curriculum, receive regular updates about how pilot implementation of new curricula is proceeding, and make recommendations for future efforts or mid-course corrections. A somewhat comparable practice has been employed successfully in several program areas already, notably in Health Education through the Citizen's Advisory Committee on Family Life and Human Development. The Curriculum Advisory Team may wish to appoint subcommittees to focus on individual program areas and discuss their findings with the full team. The findings and recommendations of the Curriculum Advisory Team will be brought to the Council on Instruction for discussion and action. In that way, the Curriculum Advisory Team can serve as a liaison to its constituent groups and help inform the broader community about curriculum efforts and issues.

3. For the past several summers, efforts have been undertaken to invite parents and members of the community to serve directly on curriculum writing committees. That practice will be expanded for all program areas. Working through the Montgomery County Council of Parent Teacher Associations (MCCPTA), as well as advocacy and advisory groups, individuals who are particularly interested in a program area or course of study, or who have expertise to share, will be actively and directly engaged in
4. Dr. Weast asked representatives from OIPD to meet with members of the MCCPTA Executive Board to discuss ways that curriculum coordinators in OIPD could access PTA newsletters as a source for providing ongoing, updated information about the status of curriculum development in MCPS. Coordinators could, for example, write a monthly Curriculum Corner article that could be included in every PTA newsletter. Dr. Weast anticipated that the MCCPTA Executive Board also would offer suggestions to keep parents informed about curriculum development efforts.

Dr. Weast believed that implementation of these recommendations would serve two purposes that are responsive to the issues raised by Board members. They would increase the awareness and involvement of Board of Education members early in the process of curriculum development and provide a forum for Board members to raise questions or concerns, as well as offer suggestions and input. The recommendations also would offer interested members of the community a variety of venues for engaging in, learning about, and participating in curriculum development in MCPS.

Re: DISCUSSION

Mrs. O’Neill noted that Board members were concerned about the Board’s oversight responsibility of curriculum, that the Board was involved at the end of the process, and the community was not involved or informed about changes. She wanted the school system to be very inclusive and involve as many people as possible in developing curriculum.

Ms. Signer was gratified by the proposed changes in that curriculum would be brought to the Board before any work had been done. In the past, the Board had been brought in very late in the process with staff spending time and money on curriculum changes when the Board was unaware that changes were underway. There are two aspects to curriculum development – the writing of documents and standards development. She did not see any mention of the Curriculum Advisory Committee (CAC) in standards development. Dr. Flynn replied that curriculum was used in a broad sense, and the community and committee would be involved in examining standards. Dr. Seleznow added that the curriculum development process would be inclusive and open, with as many members of the community as possible involved to build their ideas into the standards as well as curriculum.

Ms. Signer noted that the CAC had met once, and the Superintendent was recommending no changes in Policy IFB. The paper indicated that the CAC was convened to review the policy and provide input and recommendations regarding proposed changes. Ms. Signer asked if that meant that the CAC recommended no changes in the policy or that it had not yet considered the policy. Dr. Flynn answered that it was a process and the CAC had looked at the policy but did not thoroughly discuss whether or not to make a recommendation for changes. Among other things, the committee was examining the Council on Instruction and awaiting the curriculum audits.

Mr. Felton thought that realigning all curricula was a tremendous task. If the school system was committed to community engagement, there was an obligation to break the task down into a simple form in order for all citizens to be involved. He hoped that the language would be clarified, and the method examined to engage the community. Dr. Weast agreed, and he thought student achievement would improve if the parents knew what the school system requires of its students.

Mrs. Gordon was excited about the proposal. Other Maryland boards were doing some form of curriculum adoption. As the process goes into the community, Board members will receive phone calls, and it will be difficult to discuss issues without information about what is being proposed. Therefore, she hoped there would be early input from the Board on curriculum development and standards development.
