Re: UPDATE ON INTERNATIONAL BACCALAUREATE PROGRAMS

Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Mr. Dale Fulton, associate superintendent for curriculum and instructional programs; Mr. Mark Kelsch, community superintendent, Office of School Performance; Mrs. Virginia Tucker, director of enriched and innovative instruction; Ms. Kim Boldon, coordinator of Middle Years Program at Richard Montgomery High School; Mr. James Fernandez, principal, Albert Einstein High School; and Dr. Sherry Liebes, principal, College Gardens Elementary School.

The purpose of presentation was to provide the Board with an update on the status of the K–12 International Baccalaureate (IB) Programs in MCPS. The following topics were addressed: an overview of the development of International Baccalaureate (IB) programs in MCPS, current status of each of the programs, rates of student participation, and benefits and future challenges for MCPS. Currently, there are five Diploma Programs, two authorized Middle Years Programs (MYP) with two additional programs in the authorization process and a fourth middle school in the investigative stage, and one Primary Years Program (PYP). Combined, these programs have the capacity to serve approximately 6,100 students.

Re: DISCUSSION

Mr. Abrams asked what the distinction is between pre-IB and MYP. Ms. Boldon replied that pre-IB is for ninth and 10th grade students who are selected as incoming ninth grader. MYP is a separate program that starts in sixth grade and ends in ninth and 10th grades.

Mr. Abrams inquired about the current structure and any impediment for students coming into the program through the countywide application process. Ms. Boldon stated having two programs gave the school system greater flexibility.

Mr. Romero commented that there is a focus on rigor. Dr. Weast agreed that some programs will need to be abandoned, and there will be consistent, focused rigor.

Dr. Haughey wanted to know how the student and family support is built to assure that students are eager to participate in the IB program. Mr. Fernandez thought the support was based on trust in the rigorous program.

Ms. Cox asked for the data on schools with Middle Years programs, including the level of achievement, engagement, attendance, and discipline.

Ms. Cox noted that the difference between IB and MCPS curriculum is that IB is inquiry-based instruction. Mr. Fulton agreed. He thought the excitement occurs when teachers put the MCPS curriculum into the IB framework. Those teachers have to know the curriculum from A to Z and become curriculum experts. Overall, MCPS is heading for inquiry-based instruction.

Ms. Cox wanted to know if PYP and MYP provide a basis for children to be successful in high school. The diploma program is one of many options that students have to meet their skills, ability, and interest.
Mr. Romero noticed that there are more females than males in the IB data. Dr. Weast replied that the difference is because of after-school sports and that boys prefer an AP approach.

Mr. Romero wanted to know how to increase the participation in the IB program. Mrs. Tucker explained that staff knows students can be successful and therefore is looking for and encouraging students to enter the program.

Mr. Romero asked if teachers have a preference for teaching IB or non-IB. Mrs. Tucker responded that teachers teach all three – IB, AP, and Honors. By doing this, the high school program is strengthened.

Mr. Sanghvi thought there was a misconception that the rigor of the IB program varies among participating schools. He was pleased that the assessment and rigor is the same in all IB programs. He asked what the AP course offering were at IB schools. Mr. Fulton replied that there is the same number, and in some instances they are combined due to scheduling.

Mr. Sanghvi asked if colleges accept/give the same credit for AP and IB. Mr. Fulton explained that the colleges make those decisions.

Mr. Abrams noted that one potential is for MYP to become a predominate if not a uniformly rigorous middle school program. This could cause competition among the middle school magnets, some of whose students apply to IB programs. Would these these programs lose their effect if a more broad rigorous program such as MYP cantake their place? Furthermore, does MYP have the flexibility to adapt to a focus, such as CAP? Finally, could students apply for IB in high school if they had not participated in an MYP? Mrs. Tucker thought the school system was at an important intersection. Staff should take time to look at all the linkages and maximize the power of each program. The IB organization has always been responsive to MCPS, and it is interested in building flexibility options while maintaining the integrity of their framework and standards.

Ms. Ervin wanted to know how the IB programs will have a vertical articulation pattern. Dr. Liebes thought it was important to start early to teach students how to think and to develop independent and reflective learners. The elementary schools use a whole school approach since it is a philosophy and a way of doing business.

Ms. Ervin asked what happens to students who leave an MYP program in middle or high school. Mr. Fulton replied that the power of the program is that it prepares students to enter high school and take college-level courses, such as AP and Honors, if not IB.

Mrs. Navarro noted that there is a change in attitude with IB programming. She was especially pleased with the outreach to students. The school system should not tolerate principals or teachers who do not want to embark on this road of excellence.
The Board of Education recessed from 12:50 to 2:15 p.m.

Mr. Sanghvi temporarily left the meeting.

Re: UPDATE ON THE EVENING HIGH SCHOOL PROGRAM WORKGROUP

Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Dr. Carey M. Wright, associate superintendent, Office of Special Education and Student Services; and Mr. Donald H. Kress, chief school performance officer, Office of School Performance.

The efforts under way to improve the education of MCPS students in Grade 9 through Grade 12 include an examination of Evening High School programs. A work group of principals, central office staff, and other personnel is examining a wide range of issues associated with courses and services offered to high school students after the end of the regular school day. Many of these issues focus on problems identified in the structure, implementation, and standards of the current program and the way in which students enter the evening classes through the school system’s 24 regular high schools. The Board reviewed the most recent status report on the Evening High School Program Work Group.

The restructuring of Evening High School is a complicated and challenging objective. There are no clear models at this time to replicate. Howard County, for example, offers evening programs to only suspended students. Fairfax County has an extended-day program that also serves adults of any age. For Montgomery County, it will take careful and creative planning to achieve the lasting changes necessary to address the real needs of students. Dr. Weast believed that the work group has taken important initial steps. More work will be needed.

Mrs. Navarro thought there is no doubt that Evening High School could be replaced with instruction during the day or an alternate option. She referred to the disparities in race and ethnicity revealed in the statistics.

Ms. Ervin noted the reasons for students to be in Evening High School: credit recovery, loss of credit, and original credit. She asked if students were taking core courses in Evening High School. Also, she wanted to know if it was possible for students to stay in their high schools and retake those courses. Mr. Kress replied that the courses students are taking have been identified, and many of the courses are required for graduation. Students are taking the courses because of failure in the course or loss of credit due to attendance. However, students have the opportunity to retake courses in their home schools.

Mr. Sanghvi remarked that there are students who take courses to get ahead. This may explain the 18 percent of students in Evening High School who earn original credit. Also, he noticed that students have a good attitude toward Evening High School. Dr. Weast commented that there is a need to know what is happening in day school to determine why students enroll in Evening High School.

Mr. Romero was interested in extended opportunities for students. Dr. Weast thought there will always be a need for educational opportunities. However, he was interested in students’ success within the regular program with quality teaching and rigorous material.

Ms Cox noted that Evening High School has the enrollment of a regular high school. How can MCPS know if those students will pass all high school assessments, and are grades recorded at the home high school? Mr. Kress replied that grades are reported back to the home high school.
Ms. Cox asked about the staff and if the principal is able to recommend for Peer Assistance and Review (PAR). Dr. Lacey replied that the principal has the responsibility to hire staff and that core teachers working during the day could be referred to PAR. In the past, teachers were not observed; from now on they will be. Dr. Weast added that all instruction will be aligned and high quality under any educational scenario.

Ms. Cox mentioned the alternatives within public education for students who are not successful in a comprehensive high school, such as the Kingsley Wilderness. How can the school system design alternatives to support students? Dr. Wright thought guidance counselors could be used to determine the students who need an educational option and interventions.

Mrs. O’Neill thought that school flexibility is a necessity in some communities. It is essential that the school system provide qualified teachers as well as fulfill its educational obligations to students. An extended day with rigorous courses could provide relief for bell times. Another issue is security in the evenings.

Mrs. Navarro thought Evening High School was designed for a need in the past and it is time to bring educational alternatives into the 21st century. Mr. Kress commented that some students enter the school system with no credits. Without educational alternatives these students could not get a diploma.

Mr. Abrams and Mr. Romero temporarily left the meeting.

RESOLUTION NO. 183-05 Re: FY 2006 FEES FOR EVENING HIGH SCHOOL

Resolved, That the FY 2005 Evening High School fee structure be maintained.

Re: ONLINE HIGH SCHOOL COURSE BULLETIN

Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Ms. Aggie Alvez, director of communications; Mrs. Carol Blum, director of high school instruction and achievement; Ms. Elaine Keagle, technical lead, Web Services Team; Mr. John Mallonee, high school instructional specialist; Ms. Chris Noonan Sturm, director, Web Services Team; and Ms. Arly-Lian Costa and Ms. Aditi Srivastav, students, Col. Zadok Magruder High School.
The purpose of this discussion was to provide information on the innovative design of the new MCPS Online High School Course Bulletin. This interactive online course bulletin for high school students is the first in the region, perhaps the nation.

The Online High School Course Bulletin, launched on February 8, 2005, is the result of close collaboration between the Office of Curriculum and Instructional Programs (OCIP) and the Department of Communications. Project goals are to:

- support students in the course selection process,
- involve parents to a greater degree in course selection and post-secondary goals, and
- reduce production costs of the course bulletin.

Re: DISCUSSION

Mr. Abrams asked if the worksheet was school specific. Mr. Mallonee replied that if the information is available, it is placed with the course.

Mrs. O’Neill wanted to know if prerequisites were flagged. Mr. Mallonee replied that information surrounding a course is available.

Regarding graduation requirements, Mr. Abrams asked if the course plan can be compared on the computer to make sure all requirements are included. Mr. Mallonee stated that that is one of the visions in the plan.

Ms. Cox thought this was a great tool for students and parents, and she asked how the school system was marketing its availability. Ms. Alvez replied that there will be an aggressive advertising of the course bulletin.

Mr. Romero rejoined the meeting.

Mrs. O’Neill asked if the course bulletin will be available in other languages. Mr. Mallonee stated that this will be done in the future.

Mr. Romero asked if a ninth grader would know about a prerequisite. Mr. Mallonee said that is where the school counselor comes into the picture.

Re: DISCUSSION

Dr. Haughey thought the community idea to retain a portion of the name of the school clearly identifies the local feeling.

Mrs. O'Neill stated that she had given a lot of thought to naming this school. When the Board revisited the naming policy, one of the goals was to have more schools named for minorities and woman. As she reflected on the history of the school, it has always been called Belt. The Board supported the community’s desire to bring back Belt. The Board was committed, and she sat through many hearings where it was “Bring Back Belt.” In the past, the Board has always supported the previous name of the school when it was reopened.

Mr. Abrams stated two objections. The history of the name bothered him somewhat, but the fundamental reservation is the revitalization and change of a community which suggests a new name. In finding that name, does the Board recognize Montgomery County residents or national names? He thought that recognizing outstanding Montgomery County individuals should take precedence. In terms of contemporary history, he thought that a facility bearing the name of Mario Loiederman would do wonders for people who wanted to know who he was and what he did.

Ms. Cox stated that she was ambivalent about the school’s name. A number of schools are named for people who were slave owners. However, she was loathe to go with the last name of Col. Belt. In the past, the Board has supported community-recommended names. The Board had not heard from anyone who supports other names. Under the policy, the community can request a new name.

Mr. Romero stated that he partially agreed with Mr. Abrams and Ms. Cox. Col. Belt was a slave owner and that is historical fact. However, Belt also did a lot of good things during the revolutionary period. Mr. Romero wanted to name the school in accordance with what it has been in the past. He was an advocate for naming schools after people who were leaders in the community.

Ms. Ervin thought the Board had a choice in deciding the name of a school. It would be difficult for her to name a school after a slave owner. The community has split on the recommended names.

Mrs. Navarro thought that every decision of the Board speaks to its vision. She rejected the legacy of slavery. At the same time, it is a wonderful opportunity to honor a local person who exemplified the history of many immigrants, such as Mario Loiederman.
On recommendation of the Superintendent and on motion of Dr. Haughey seconded by Mrs. O’Neill, the following resolution failed with Ms. Cox, Dr. Haughey, Mrs. O’Neill, and Mr. Sanghvi voting in the affirmative; Mr. Abrams, Ms. Ervin, Mrs. Navarro, and Mr. Romero voting in the negative:

Re: BOARD/SUPERINTENDENT COMMENTS

Mr. Romero reported that he and other Board members had met with the Upcounty Latino Network, and it was a very interesting and informative meeting.

Mrs. Navarro stated that she had met with the Asian community, and there was a spirited conversation about their needs and desires.

Dr. Lacey commented that excitement is building for the Champions for Children Gala that will be held on April 20th at the Bethesda North Marriott Hotel. The gala, sponsored by the Montgomery County Business Roundtable for Education, is an opportunity to honor outstanding MCPS staff members and others who have made important contributions to student success.

For the first time this year, the three veteran teachers who have received the Excellence in Teaching Awards from the Marian Greenblatt Education Fund are designated as the finalists for the Montgomery County Teacher of the Year. The winner will be announced on April 20.

Dr. Lacey noted that there will be an exciting opportunity for MCPS high school juniors.
