Dr. Weast commented that more than 100 students displaced by Hurricane Katrina are attending MCPS schools, and that number is still growing. School staff members are expediting the enrollment of these students. MCPS is committed to providing educational assistance and support to families and students affected by this catastrophe. Staff members have been briefed on enrollment procedures, and personnel from the Department of Student Services are helping to link families to health and social services.

Dr. Weast said that people should look for a new e-mail service, MCPS QuickNotes, starting this month. The publication is for parents and others and is available in six languages: English, Spanish, Chinese, Korean, Vietnamese, and French. QuickNotes is full of useful information about the school system, including MCPS-sponsored events, Board of Education highlights, testing, and links to other publications and Web sites.

Dr. Weast said that everyone has undoubtedly noticed that the CESC “lawn” is being transformed into a parking lot. MCPS has agreed to let Montgomery College build a 438-space parking area on the land to accommodate its increasing student parking needs and provide a productive use for the space.

Dara Feldman, a kindergarten teacher at Garrett Park Elementary School, was named Outstanding Elementary School Teacher at the annual Disney Teacher Awards. Each year, Disney honors 45 exceptional teachers selected from more than 50,000 nominees. Six teachers receive top awards in specific categories such as elementary, middle, or high school teacher.

Mrs. Navarro was pleased with the students’ efforts regarding the hurricane relief. Also, she attended the first community forum, and she encouraged the community to attend. Translation services are available.

Mr. Abrams noted that the opinion letters on prescription drug procurement were made public at this meeting. In the September 26 discussion of prescription drugs, Mr. Abrams would like information on what Montgomery County is doing in terms of prescription drug procurement, and the opinion from the county’s attorney. Lastly, he wanted lawyers for MCPS to comment on the role of civil disobedience for public policy makers.

Ms. Cox asked for a correction in one of the statements in the Reese and Carney opinion.

Ms. Cox commented that she has been involved over the past several months in a group that has become a national coalition to address persistent vacancies in special education and related services providers. At an October 19 meeting in Montgomery County, the superintendent will provide a local perspective on how those vacancies affect children.

Mr. Romero remarked that he represented the Board at the summer school graduation at Quince Orchard High School. It was very colorful since so many schools were represented. Also, he thanked staff for its efforts to provide avenues for leadership for Hispanic teachers.

Regarding Hurricane Katrina rescues, Ms. Ervin said that the issue of race and class in America cannot be glossed over. She drew a connection between that and public schools. There is a need for language translation and access for people of poverty. There is a need to drill down at the school site as much as possible to assure access and get people what they need to participate in their child’s education.

Mrs. O’Neill noted that many grandmothers provide homes for children and that not all families come in “traditional” packages. Also, she commented on charter education and the resources for children and parents throughout the community.

Re: COMPREHENSIVE MASTER PLAN AND BRIDGE TO EXCELLENCE

On recommendation of the Superintendent and on motion of Dr. Haughey seconded by Ms. Cox, the following resolution was placed on the table:

WHEREAS, The General Assembly enacted Senate Bill 856, The Bridge to Excellence in Public Schools Act on April 4, 2002, and on May 6, 2002, Governor Parris N. Glendening signed the Act into law; and

WHEREAS, The Act requires local school systems to submit annual updates of their five-year comprehensive master plans to the Maryland State Department of Education by October 17 of each year, to include estimated prior year revenues and expenditures with the annual update; and

WHEREAS, On June 27, 2005, the Board of Education approved Our Call to Action: Pursuit of Excellence—The Strategic Plan for the Montgomery County Public Schools 2004–2009;
WHEREAS, The strategic plan for the Montgomery County Public Schools contains goals and strategies to promote academic excellence among all students, and to eliminate performance gaps among identified subgroups of students; and

WHEREAS, The strategic plan for the Montgomery County Public Schools incorporates and embeds the five goals of the No Child Left Behind Act and six focus areas of the Bridge to Excellence in Public Schools Act; and

WHEREAS, The strategic plan is the cornerstone of the Montgomery County Public Schools Comprehensive Master Plan; and

WHEREAS, The Montgomery County Public Schools Bridge to Excellence in Public Schools Act—Comprehensive Master Plan fulfills all of the required components, including strategies and supporting documentation; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the Board of Education approve the updated Montgomery County Public Schools Bridge to Excellence in Public Schools Act—Comprehensive Master Plan; and be it further

Resolved, That Montgomery County Public Schools staff submit the Comprehensive Master Plan to the Maryland State Department of Education on or before October 17, 2005, as required by the Bridge to Excellence in Public Schools Act.

Re: DISCUSSION

Dr. Haughey thought this was less oppressive preparation than a couple of years ago. Therefore, this has become more routine as time goes on. However, he was curious as to how much staff effort is required to comply with this annual revision as mandated by the state. Mr. Bowers replied that there are hundreds of hours invested in the production of the document. Dr. Spatz noted that several of the updates contained figures that are required anyway by the state and federal governments. Furthermore, the school system has received a lot of technical support from the state.

Dr. Haughey inquired as to the funding for classrooms to replace temporary structures. Mr. Bowers said the expenditure for portables was $7 million this year. In general, MCPS would like more funding from the state for a long-term and permanent solution for classroom space.

Ms. Cox thanked staff for the work that went into the master plan. It is a good summary of what MCPS has done and an analysis of what has worked and strategies to improve efforts that did not work. This is the kind of document that community members have been looking for, especially in discussing the budget. In the reference to Reading First, Ms. Cox inquired about mid-year objectives and whether or not the four schools implementing the program had made annual yearly progress (AYP). Ms. Leleck replied that all schools made AYP.

Ms. Cox was pleased to read about the efforts in special education. She requested feedback on how MCPS ensures that it has the appropriate curriculum for children with specific disabilities, for example dyslexia.

Ms. Cox requested that the following statement be rewritten: A lack of community understanding for the standards-based curriculum required a slower-than-expected implementation of the initiative. She was pleased with the text on highly gifted students since the Code of Maryland requires an assessment in order to provide appropriate instruction.

To increase translation services, Mr. Abrams asked how this is reflected in the master plan, what steps MCPS goes through to make sure it is addressed, and what the time lag is between initiation and inclusion in the budget. Mr. Bowers responded that translation services are included in the Strategic Plan that the Board adopted in the spring. The first phase of a multi-year implementation was included in this year’s budget. It is a key part of the feedback and discussions at the recent forums. The upcoming budget will have the continued roll-out of that initiative to provide translation services.

Mr. Abrams noted that in the past the budget was amended to include “great” ideas. However, there will always be a gap between a new initiative, and how it is addressed in the master plan. Once it gets into the Master Plan, it becomes a foundation for budget preparation. How much flexibility does the Board have to accelerate the process, and what would be the implications? Mr. Bowers responded that the Strategic Plan drives the operating budget, and the Board is the decision maker.

Mr. Abrams noted that there were Strategic Plan updates and budget hearings. What can the Board do to align the community input on budget to the process? Is there a way to get a contemporaneous assessment with cluster testimony – in other words, a way to provide a translation mechanism on what is being requested and how that relates to the Strategic Plan and budget? Mr. Bowers stated that there will be a document outlining the budget initiatives with the Board’s goals and strategic initiatives within those goals of the Strategic Plan. Mr. Abrams stated that staying on course has led MCPS’ success.

Mr. Romero remarked on the accountability aspects of the master plan. Goal 5 of the plan deals with absenteeism in schools, but there was not a timeline for that goal. Mr. Bowers explained that the intent is to meet the goal now. However, for all of the measures, the goals are being driven down to the local school, and each school is monitored.
Mr. Romero noted that the schools in need of attention have either Limited English Proficiency (LEP) or special education students. That is not the case with Silver Spring International Middle School (SSIMS) and asked what was being done to address the SSIMS issue. Dr. Lacey replied that MCPS and state staff met once a month, and the same approach is being used with SSIMS. The team will look at data and student achievement plans.

Mrs. Navarro referred to the table on the Maryland Model for School Readiness and the composite scores that show that from 2002 to 2005, there was either no change in the percentage of students at full readiness, and, in some cases, there was a 10-percent drop of white students at full readiness. Also, there was a significant increase of non-English speaking students in Montgomery County during the 2003-04 school year. There was a decrease in child-care subsidies, which leads to more children in non-regulated care. How is MCPS monitoring this impact on Latino, African-American, and white students?

Mrs. Navarro noted that in the community budget forum one of the areas of questions focused on the number of pre-kindergarten slots that have not been filled. How many vacant slots are there? What is MCPS’ strategy to fill these vacancies?

Mrs. Navarro also noted that the Master Plan referred to new or revised strategies for kindergarten and pre-kindergarten implementation in the next year. She referred to the collaboration among MCPS, Health and Human Services, and the Montgomery County Child Care Resources and Referral Center to develop and implement training plans for a target group of community-based child care providers in MCPS’ pre-kindergarten curriculum. How are those plans progressing, and what are the outcomes?

Dr. Weast commented that it is not easy to get all participants around the same table on the early childhood issue. He said he was frustrated that the added slots in the budget rely on other agencies to recruit students. However, it has been proven that the children are there, and there needs to be a plan developed to get them into the slots. Even though MCPS does not have the authority or mechanism to seek candidates, the children benefit when they have pre-kindergarten educations.

Ms. Ervin agreed with the discussion, and the Strategy Plan that previous Boards had adopted is fabulous. If a Board member hears or knows that a plan is not being implemented, the Board has an obligation to bring it to the table. She noted that attendance can be linked to parent specialists positions in the schools. Divergent issues are really all connected.

Mrs. O’Neill summed up by stating that the cornerstone of the Master Plan is the Strategic Plan, upon which the operating budget is built. The Board adopted the Strategic Planning Forums to compile information from the community for budgetary items. People wanted input before the budget deliberations, and the forums provide this opportunity. Furthermore, the Master Plan lists the good and the bad; it is a living document on which to base corrective
Ms. Cox suggested that the Research and Evaluation Committee review the processes used and see if any adjustments can be made. Maybe there is a need to change the focus to certain groups of the student population, instead of listing the goals generically.

Re: NORTHEAST CONSORTIUM CRITERIA AMENDMENT

On recommendation of the Superintendent and on motion of Mr. Abrams seconded by Ms. Cox, the following resolution was placed on the table:

WHEREAS, Board of Education Resolution No. 799-96 included provisions governing assignment of students to Northeast Consortium high schools in accordance with preferred choice and provided for periodic review and updates; and

WHEREAS, By Resolution 37-00, the Board of Education amended Resolution No. 799-96 to adjust the utilization/enrollment criterion; and

WHEREAS, The preferred choice assignment criteria in Resolution No. 799-96 included race/ethnicity as one of the factors to be considered in student assignments; and

WHEREAS, By Resolution 711-99, the Board of Education suspended any consideration of race or ethnicity as a factor in student assignment decisions; and

WHEREAS, Two additional consortia have been created since 1996, both of which include socioeconomic level as identified by the “ever” Free and Reduced-price Meals System (FARMS) participation as one of the factors to be considered in student assignments; and

WHEREAS, It is desirable to employ consistent criteria for student assignment decisions across consortia and to review periodically the effectiveness of the criteria in promoting choice, efficiently utilizing schools, improving achievement, and creating diverse educational environments; now therefore be it

Resolved, That Resolution No. 799-96 be and hereby is amended to include student “ever” FARMS participation as one of the factors that can be considered in the preferred choice student assignment process in the Northeast Consortium.

Re: DISCUSSION

Mrs. Navarro stated that it is important to be consistent and align with other consortia. She would support the amendment.

Ms. Cox asked how the decisions are made on this issue. What is the message the school system sends regarding parent involvement? If this amendment is to provide consistency with other consortia, what did staff expect from the community if it did not agree or think it was appropriate? Mr. Lang said there were meetings that presented the history of the consortium, demographic data, and surveyed the parents through the cluster coordinators. However, there was concern that all stakeholders did not have input.

Ms. Cox did not understand why staff would seek input since the Board’s policy went through a public comment process that emphasized the need for socioeconomic balance of the student population within a school. She wanted to know if the school system was fostering an expectation that a negative response would be acceptable. Therefore, staff needs to be clear when it seeks information on process, and when it is up for debate and possible change. Furthermore, staff needs to explain to the community why the Board is taking this action.

Ms. Ervin said she appreciated Dr. Weast’s leadership on this issue. There are community leaders who presume to speak for everyone, and the Board sets expectations when seeking input that might not be attainable based on policy and law. It is time to make a decision, and she supported the amendment.

Mr. Abrams added that it was consistent with other consortia, and it is fundamental to the transfer policy. Furthermore, the school system has indicators that show that MCPS education progress is fundamentally tied to its ability to provide a contemporary education.

Ms. Cox thought there needed to be a better understanding between the Board and staff on the meaning of “input” if there is a policy and precedent that guides the request. Dr. Weast agreed and said decisions cannot be made without the community observing the progress.

Mr. Romero quoted from the memorandum that stated, “Research shows that a high concentration of eligible FARMS students in a school has an adverse impact on the academic performance in that school.” That is the reason for the amendment, and he supported the amendment.

Re: ORGANIZATIONAL CULTURE OF RESPECT

Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Ms. Bonnie Cullison, president, Montgomery County Education Association (MCEA); Dr. Rebecca Newman, president, Montgomery County Association of Administrative and Supervisory Personnel (MCAASP); Mr. David Rodich, executive director, SEIU Local 500; Mr. Larry Bowers, chief operating officer; Dr. Frieda Lacey, deputy superintendent of schools; Mr. John Q. Porter, deputy superintendent for information and organizational systems; and Mr. Donald Kress, chief school performance officer.
During the 2004–05 school year, the leadership of the three employee organizations, the three deputy superintendents, and the chief school performance officer met on a regular basis to address issues that affect all three employee organizations. The participants discussed areas of focus for the year and determined that the priority area of focus should be the creation of an organizational culture of respect throughout MCPS. This group used an interest-based process to reach consensus, a process that the group continues to use in all of its collaborative work. After identifying the interests of each organization, the group identified options to consider as part of the organizational culture of respect. The next step was to develop a one-text document that meets the interests of all of the parties.

This one-text document or compact was presented at the MCPS Leadership Seminar on May 13, 2005, at Johns Hopkins University. The Executive Leadership Team, representatives of each of the employee organizations, representatives of the Montgomery County Council of Parent Teacher Associations (MCCPTA), and some Board of Education members attended this leadership seminar. Following an overview of the document, the participants provided input to the group that developed the document. The document that the Board is asked to approve includes the input that was received.

The compact represents a description of the culture the parties believe should exist throughout MCPS. The parties are committed to making this description a reality by building strong relationships and working together collaboratively. The partners will collectively resolve problems, address common issues, and identify opportunities for improvement. This takes time, commitment, hard work, and dedication to be successful. It requires building trust, communicating openly and honestly, and being responsible for one’s own behavior. And, it requires the partners to act with self-control and show concern for others at all times. MCPS will model how it expects all members of the community to interact.

The compact reflects the values and the behaviors that are expected of all individuals in their interactions with students, other staff, parents, and others who are involved in the school system. These expected behaviors are listed on pages three and four of the document. The document also identifies the ways in which the Board and the school system support the work to create this culture of respect.

The presidents of MCAASP, MCEA, and SEIU Local 500 will submit this compact to their respective boards of directors for approval and commitment. The Executive Leadership Team has reviewed the document, provided input, and is committed to supporting all of the components of the compact. This document will be presented to all MCPS administrators and supervisors at the Superintendent’s A&S Meeting on September 14, 2005, for their support. It will be discussed at an MCEA representative assembly meeting and the membership meetings of SEIU Local 500 and MCAASP. The document will be included in the MCPS Strategic Plan, on the Web site, in professional growth system documents, and in new employee orientation meetings. In addition, the group will meet with other partners, including MCCPTA and other groups representing parents, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, business partners, and representatives of other organizations to review the agreement and adopt similar compacts.

Re: DISCUSSION

Mr. Johnson thought the culture of respect was a lofty goal, but he was concerned about the method of attainment. How are the school system and managers going to move to mutual respect? Mr. Bowers reported that the professional growth systems will reflect it through diversity and development training. Also, administration will support the collaborative process to nurture and support decision making. Moreover, continuous improvement with the Baldrige process reflects mutual respect.

Mr. Johnson wanted to know how the system will measure success. Mr. Bowers stated that this will be measured through the climate surveys of parents, employees, and students. Plus, there will be informal feedback throughout the year.

Mrs. Navarro thought the document was a wonderful blueprint for behavior that should be obvious. She wanted to add language about the diversity of school-based and non-school based employees to foster respect. She was interested in the expected outcomes of study circles and diversity training.

Ms. Cox was pleased with the document and called it a tremendous step forward with a real commitment and collaboration to be self-aware and positive in dealing with each other. To address continuous improvement, staff are responsible for identifying issues and developing solutions. She called it a wonderful model for students.

Mr. Romero thought this document reflected a lifetime of experiences. Every person has a set of tasks to make the schools operate efficiently. The Strategic Plan has embedded aspects of the document, such as the professional growth systems. Mr. Romero asked if there would be training. Dr. Newman thought there needs to be skill building on how to change behavior with ongoing practice.

Ms. Ervin commented that risk takers are not valued in this culture. Risk taking and psychological safety is the ability to tell the truth without repercussions. The culture of respect is important, and it needs to be present at every level, especially when dealing with students. The words are beautiful, and the intent is powerful. Where is the accountability, and how will the school system know if it is working? Dr. Weast agreed that was the conundrum. In working toward the desired state, staff needs to work together in a culture of truth, respect, and courageous conversations.

Mrs. O’Neill thought the school system should be proud that it is at this point. In the past, the mind set was that unions worked in an adversarial position with the Board and administration. Everyone working together through a continuous improvement process will support students.
RESOLUTION NO. 499-05 Re: ORGANIZATIONAL CULTURE OF RESPECT

On recommendation of the Superintendent and on motion of Ms. Cox seconded by Dr. Haughey, the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

WHEREAS, The leadership of the three employee organizations, the three deputy superintendents, and the chief school performance officer developed the compact on creating an organizational culture of respect: and

WHEREAS, This culture is built on the belief that all employees contribute to a successful learning environment; and

WHEREAS, The compact expresses the parties’ commitment to shared responsibility and collaborative partnerships to support this organizational culture of respect; and

WHEREAS, This compact identifies the behaviors of all individuals and groups that are expected to create an organizational culture of respect; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the Board of Education is committed to fostering an organizational culture of respect and to making certain that this culture is promoted throughout the school system; and be it further

Resolved, That the Board of Education adopt and support the compact on creating an organizational culture of respect in Montgomery County Public Schools to ensure success for every student.

Re: UPDATE ON THE MARYLAND SCHOOL ASSESSMENT

Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Mr. Donald H. Kress, chief school performance officer; Ms. Jody Leleck, associate superintendent for curriculum and instructional programs; Dr. Carey Wright, associate superintendent for special education and student services; Dr. Faith Connolly, acting director for shared accountability; and Dr. Felicia Lanham Tarason, principal, Wheaton Woods Elementary School.

This presentation provides information on the Maryland School Assessment (MSA) and the relationship of this assessment program to MCPS’ ongoing initiatives in school improvement, especially elementary school reforms and efforts underway in middle school. The number of students assessing at or above proficient continues to increase each year. Offices are working collaboratively to support the delivery of highly rigorous instructional and support programs for schools. An update on recent changes in the Maryland State Department of Education’s (MSDE) accountability program to comply with the mandates of the No Child Left
The school system exceeded the state’s proficiency rate at every grade level on the MSA. A total of 98 percent of MCPS elementary schools met Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP), while 69 percent of the middle schools met AYP. In addition, elementary student performance showed that the achievement gap by race and ethnicity was narrowed and improvements were achieved in the performance of students receiving special education services since the inception of the MSA in 2003. Six Title I elementary schools, with student populations highly affected by poverty, exited School Improvement status this year, giving evidence to the effectiveness of the MCPS reform initiatives. Additionally, Highland Elementary, the only county school in Corrective Action status, achieved AYP this year. Middle school student performance improved slightly and underscores the importance of the middle school reform initiatives.

The strong performance by elementary school students on the MSA reflects the continuing success of ongoing academic improvement efforts. These efforts have resulted in closing the achievement gap for African American and Hispanic students in elementary schools. Sustaining these student achievement gains and addressing the needed improvements for middle schools will require support for initiatives to reform middle schools and address the disparities in achievement. In addition to the reform initiatives, support programs, and interventions provided by MCPS, additional community support is essential for long-term student success.

Re: DISCUSSION

Dr. Weast commented that he was writing to the state superintendent to remind her that the state has an obligation to 13,000 students with limited English proficiency (LEP) to develop an appropriate examination. He was pleased that 122 out of 125 elementary schools met AYP, especially with 13,000 LEP students. Furthermore, he was concerned about the lack of special education teachers throughout the state.

Ms. Cox asked how students are counted, such as FARMS or LEP. Dr. Connolly replied that at a minimum a student would be counted twice – once in a count for all students/racial ethnic groups and again for any special services being received.

Mr. Romero noted that one of Watkins Mill Elementary School’s goals is that every child can succeed, and that rated high with parents. He was pleased that the Baldrige Initiative was permeating the system. How many volunteer opportunities are in there, especially in middle schools? Dr. Lacey replied that staff has just started with the middle school reform, and part of the reform is parental engagement.

Mr. Romero commented that there was still an achievement gap with Hispanics and African-Americans, but the scores are very close to the average. Dr. Weast replied that options need to be provided and institutional barriers must be removed. The curriculum and high rigor has been established at elementary schools, and that initiative must be continued in secondary schools.

Ms. Cox was impressed with the outreach to families at Wheaton Woods Elementary Schools. She asked about reading support for schools and the alignment of the Reading Language Arts curriculum with the state’s curriculum. When the curriculum was approved, staff stated that it was back-mapped for advanced placement for students. Does that align with the state’s curriculum or is MCPS preparing for a higher level? Ms. Leleck replied that when staff is addressing elementary and middle school curricula, it is talking about reading readiness. When dealing with the advanced placement of students, this moves from process to access of content.

Ms. Cox stated that the middle school reform will require a new policy from the Board. Staff will need to work concurrently on the reform and the policy. Regarding special education support for students, she asked if staff was looking at data points mentioned in the guide and if they are tracked to provide additional indicators for strategies for success. Dr. Wright replied that this is the first year that the guide was provided to principals, and there is a forthcoming plan to monitor more closely all data from special education classrooms.

Mrs. O’Neill commented that the Bridge to Excellence in Maryland uses a cohort of five students, whereas West Virginia uses 35, Virginia uses 50, and some states are lobbying for 100 students. The smaller number makes the job harder to meet AYP. The theory from the state superintendent is that the smaller number will move all students forward.

Ms. Ervin noticed that the differences in the subgroups is getting smaller. What does it mean? Dr. Connolly replied that through Grade 3, the gap has been reduced in reading as well as in math. Ms. Ervin stated that she understood that it takes extra support and intervention.

Re: DIALOGUE ON CURRENT ISSUES (UPDATE ON SATS)

Dr. Weast presented slides showing that on the 2005 SAT, while the systemwide average score remained above 1100 for the second consecutive year, a historic high for MCPS, significant gaps in student performance continue to exist by race and ethnicity. These gaps, however, can be overcome by increased participation and success in more rigorous courses that provide the preparation students need for success on the SAT, as well as for college and postsecondary careers.

Research has shown that students who complete advanced rigorous courses in English and mathematics routinely receive higher mean scores on the SAT than students who complete less rigorous courses. The Research Brief, African American and Hispanic Student SAT Participation and Performance by English and Mathematics Course Taking, examines SAT participation, performance, and course-taking patterns of African American and Hispanic students in the MCPS Classes of 2001 to 2005. This analysis shows that the number of African American and Hispanic students scoring 550 or higher on the verbal or math sections of the SAT has increased from 2001 to 2005. However, the recent overall increase in SAT participation by African American and Hispanic students was greater among students who completed English 10 or lower or Algebra 1 or lower courses. Because of the increase in under-prepared students taking the SAT, the systemwide mean score has remained flat for the past five years for African American and Hispanic students.

The research clearly shows that African American and Hispanic students who enroll in more advanced English and mathematics courses perform better on the SAT. Students’ SAT verbal and math scores increase as students complete increasingly rigorous courses. Enrollment of African American and Hispanic students in more challenging and rigorous courses is increasing, and MCPS must do more to open more opportunities for more rigorous course work.

MCPS teachers and school-based administrators continue to encourage and motivate students to enroll and take advantage of advanced course work, including Honors and Advanced Placement courses. The Office of School Performance provides ongoing supervision to ensure that increased overall rigor and expectations for students are occurring. Monitoring activities include developing focused plans for individual schools to increase PSAT and SAT performance and participation. Parents also are informed through school and cluster meetings of the importance of students taking the most challenging courses possible, beginning in elementary school, to prepare for the rigors and challenges of advanced high school courses. Staff is working to update documentation to communicate more clearly the sequence and level of course work necessary for students to be optimally prepared for success on the SAT and other significant measures of academic attainment.

Preparation for rigorous course work begins in the elementary grades, and the success of the early childhood initiatives in successive grades underscores the importance of raising the bar for high student achievement. The middle school reform efforts will include a strong focus on preparing the vast majority of students to complete Algebra 1 or Geometry by end of Grade 8 in order to be prepared for more advanced course work in high school. Similar efforts will be made in other key subject areas. MCPS is committed to preparing all students to meet the challenges of high academic achievement and future success in college and in the workplace.

Re: DISCUSSION

Mr. Romero commented that in individual schools the participation is up, but the scores are down. However, it is a measure of success that more students are encouraged to take the test. There is concern for Hispanic and African-American males who continue have lower test scores. Dr. Weast replied that five years of data show the students taking the higher level of courses achieve better on the test.

Mr. Abrams noted that this ties back to the reform efforts of elementary schools. Reading proficiency by third grade is an indicator of success, and the students will continue to achieve because they have a foundation. The next focus was math in elementary school. Dr. Weast replied that there is no need to drop off in middle school. Rigor must continue from early childhood education straight through high school.

Mr. Abrams asked about the new writing component to the SAT. Mrs. O’Neill noted that Algebra II will be included in the new test. The old SATs will not be comparable to the new SAT. Verbal skills are learned over a lifetime, and it is critical that all students are good readers. Dr. Weast replied that the increased rigor helps students acquire good skills to increase their educational opportunities, not just prepare for a test.

Dr. Haughey noted that MCPS is taking children that are not challenged currently and asking them to accept rigorous courses. Where is MCPS going to get the teachers to raise performance at the upper levels of math? Dr. Weast replied that it will be done through professional development. The elementary children can do the higher level work, and now the secondary level must perform equally as well so students can succeed in college and employment. Next, the curriculum must be enhanced as well as taught. Furthermore, all teachers must have content knowledge. Dr. Haughey remarked that teachers have not had the opportunity to take Algebra II, and the system has to provide teachers with opportunities so that they are able to teach math at higher levels.

Ms. Cox commented that this is the result of many sequenced efforts, and the recognition that the system is setting expectations higher for all students. Through the Grading and Reporting Policy, all children can be successful and supports will be provided to that end.

Mrs. O’Neill reminded the Board that the High School Assessments were looming on the horizon, and it is imperative that all students achieve a diploma.

Re: MAIN ENTRANCE TO THE CARVER EDUCATIONAL SERVICES CENTER

The following previous new business item was withdrawn by Ms. Ervin because the work to improve the east lobby has commenced:

WHEREAS, Carver High School and Junior College opened in September of 1951, during the time the school system was segregated, as the first senior high school built for black children, bearing the designation of a Montgomery County school named after a black scientist, Dr. George Washington Carver; and

WHEREAS, Carver High School’s Class of 1960 was its last graduating class before the school closed its doors on June 13, 1960, as the last steps of desegregation were carried out in the wake of the Supreme Court’s decision of Brown v. Board of Education; and

WHEREAS, Carver Educational Services Center, housing the central administration of the school system, has occupied the building in the intervening forty-five years, employing thousands of employees, few of whom are mindful of the significant and meaningful history of those who attended and taught at the segregated Carver High School and Junior College; and

WHEREAS, Except for a limited display on one wall inside the main entrance to the building, the lobby is otherwise strewn with newspapers and highlighted by stray postings that distract from the historical significance of George Washington Carver, the man and the school; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the Superintendent of Schools direct appropriate staff to design the main entrance to Carver Education Services Center, in an aesthetically pleasing manner, the design to be both educationally and historically true and accurate, in acknowledging the rich contributions of George Washington Carver and the significant role of the students and staff of Carver High School and Junior College who blazed a path followed by many who improved themselves and society; and be it further

Resolved, That the main entrance design be implemented promptly.
