Re: BOARD/SUPERINTENDENT COMMENTS

Dr. Weast commented that Kimberly Oliver, kindergarten teacher at Broad Acres Elementary School, was named Maryland Teacher of the Year for 2005 at a ceremony last Friday evening in Baltimore County. Each of the 24 Maryland school jurisdictions selects an outstanding teacher to compete for the award, sponsored by the Maryland State Department of Education. She played a notable role in the restructuring of Broad Acres that has proved so successful in improving student achievement and meeting or exceeding all requirements of the No Child Left Behind Act for the 2003 and 2004 school years. In addition, she has earned certification by the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards. Through her leadership in professional development, she has encouraged other teachers at Broad Acres who are pursuing certification.

Mr. Abrams noted that the school system has had a lot of award winners over the years who are still in the system. He thought those winners also need to be constantly celebrated and included with the present award winners. He hoped they would be included in the future.

Mr. Abrams commended the county executive for following the law and sending a letter to the Food and Drug Administration requesting a waiver to allow the county to purchase prescription drugs from Canada for employees. Since the school system receives federal grants, Mr. Abrams was concerned with the potential of jeopardizing those grants if the system had gone forward with Mr. Perez’s encouragement to start a program to procure drugs from Canada.

Furthermore, the Board received a letter from Mr. Perez that was retaliatory in nature regarding the legality and availability of translation services at the last meeting. The answer to the letter had to point out the law and facts to correct Mr. Perez’ interpretation.

Dr. Haughey commented that he served on the committee to select the teacher of the year, and he was impressed by the caliber of teachers, especially Ms. Oliver since she was clearly the best candidate. Second, he was pleased with the success of the Sharp Suspension Program. Third, he was astounded by the number of the volunteers from Comcast who worked at Silver Spring International Middle School and Sligo Creek Elementary School. Finally, he was pleased at the turn out for the Strategic Planning forums and said there is an advantage to this approach.

Mr. Romero noted that there had been interpreters available at this and the last meeting for anyone who needed that service. Furthermore, there are informative booklets for parents that have been translated into a number of languages. Second, he reported on his inspection of Rocky Hill Middle School, and the wonderful layout of the building for smaller learning communities. Plus, the landscaping and front entrance are very welcoming. Third, Mr. Romero was charged by the Strategic Planning committee to look at the CIP and investigate construction by meeting with architects and builders. He expected to provide a report to the Board later this fall.

Ms. Cox stated that it was a pleasure to see Ms. Oliver being acknowledged as an excellent teacher and representative of Montgomery County. Several Board members went to the MABE Conference and saw Mrs. O’Neill installed as president of the association.

Mrs. O’Neill reported that a number of Board members went to the Supreme Court to hear the Schaffer v. Weast case. Interestingly, the first student member of the county Board of Education, David Nieman, was sworn in as a member of the Supreme Court bar. Also, she congratulated Ms. Oliver for her award and expertise as an educator.

Re: UPDATE ON CIP/ENROLLMENT

Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Mr. Richard Hawes, director, Department of Facilities Management, and Mr. Bruce Crispell, director, Division of Long-range Planning. This year’s annual update on enrollment includes a presentation on preliminary enrollment and demographic trends affecting future enrollment. The presentation also includes an overview of Spending Affordability Guidelines (SAG), the State CIP request, and the schedule for the superintendent’s boundary and CIP recommendations.

Re: DISCUSSION

Mr. Abrams pointed out that the average county income is going up, which would result in a decrease in the FARMS rate. Dr. Weast agreed that since it costs too much to live in Montgomery County, younger families are moving to other jurisdictions.

Dr. Weast continued that students requiring ESOL services have continued to climb. This fact has huge implications on funding and instruction since it is difficult to acquire academic English within two years.

Dr. Weast reported that there was a net increase of students coming to MCPS from private schools. Ms. Ervin asked for the ethnic breakdown of private schools with enrollment and withdrawals.

Dr. Weast noted that the school system is much more diverse than the county as a whole. The important thing is how MCPS leads the country on almost every score, and the college entrance rate is 100 points above the country’s average.

Dr. Weast was determined that the facilities in the poorest areas of the county should be improved, especially to reduce the number of relocatable classrooms. The rate of mobility within the school system affects facilities as well as instruction.
Ms. Cox wanted to know if the school system had school-by-school data that showed what other schools, both in the same and other clusters, from which students are coming, and if the system is looking at disaggregated data to determine if there is a difference in academic achievement.

Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Ms. Jody Leleck, associate superintendent, Office of Curriculum and Instructional Programs; and Dr. Faith Connolly, director, Department of Shared Accountability.

This is an update on the strategic importance of information technology in the reform initiatives under way in MCPS. This technology includes the software and hardware as well as the innovative approaches in the use of information to inform decision making. However, more needs to be done to mirror the technology advances in private industry that make actual real-time information available anytime, anywhere. Product manufacturing and delivery systems that employ highly sophisticated technology are the backbone of the 21st century advances in the world’s economy, and there are many examples in the success of Dell, WalMart, and UPS among many others, that point the way for improving the production and delivery of public services. MCPS is largely still in the 20th century. Support for improving the school system’s information technology resources is critical to ensuring the ability of MCPS to thrive in an increasingly demanding and challenging world. All the reform initiatives need technology to deliver a highly rigorous curriculum, grade-level student assessments aligned with national and state standards, instruction based on individual students’ needs, differentiated professional training for teachers and principals to ensure effective instructional practices, and greater communication with parents.

Ms. Ervin noted that she had heard a lot about technology, but she wanted to know what the school system was spending on technology, and how it helped the students. Ms. Leleck replied that teachers can use technology to analyze quickly a student’s progress in order to focus instruction, and the teacher can use the time saved to further help the student. Dr. Weast commented on apportioning the resources since there is differential learning within the county. He wanted to know about those children in the impacted areas to determine if they have the most capable teacher.

Ms. Ervin asked what the impact was on the teacher and student learning. Ms. Leleck replied that the key to ensuring access to a rigorous curriculum was through the use of data.

Mrs. O’Neill stated that the use of data helps meet the needs of each child. The more technology that is used, the faster that data can be analyzed and acted on to provide appropriate instruction.

Ms. Ervin thought the community wanted to know how the technology helps the children. Dr. Weast explained that there needs to be documented information on what a child has learned, and what should be done if that child has not learned the curriculum. In the past, children were tested at the end of the grade when it was no longer possible to reteach the curriculum. If they had not learned the information, then it was someone else’s problem. With technology, the students can be assessed early and often to make a rapid change in instruction.

Mr. Abrams noted that it will be more cost effective when technology is introduced into the process and implemented by a paraeducator. In the context of a differentiated classroom, the teacher does not need to administer the assessment if there are tools that allow interaction between the guide and student. The teacher’s time can be used to analyze, diagnose, and prescribe instruction. Dr. Weast commented that students can self-administer the test to ascertain whether or not they have the concept done correctly. With technology, they system can move quicker, better, cheaper, and more targeted.

Mr. Romero noted that in his experience as an architect, hand-drafting has given way to technology, and fewer people can do the work. More projects can be handled, and clients can make more changes at the last minute. However, technology is a tool, which does not make an architect or teacher. Mr. Porter commented that technology allows for faster decision making that results in proper student instruction and increased rigor.

Ms. Cox thought this was the right approach to move the system forward with consistency and the use of data across all schools. She asked if the vision and use of technology will eventually be tied to student achievement. Also, she asked if instructional materials will be assessed to determine which produce the best outcomes and if best practices will be identified. Mr. Porter confirmed that the school system’s vision is to have information across the system to ascertain what produces success, if there is consistency, if the background of the teacher makes a difference, how staff development changes instruction, and what can be done to enhance student achievement. Dr. Weast would like a system that could analyze interventions with a cost-effective critique.

Ms. Cox noted that the Grading and Reporting Policy is being monitored for implementation. With this data, it can be determined if the purpose of the policy is met.

Mrs. Navarro remarked that this is the information age, and the school system needs the resources to accomplish its mission and goals. The Board has to articulate what is needed and why so that parents and the community can understand the system’s technology.

Mrs. O’Neill thought it was nice to talk about technology, but the bottom line is: does is make a difference for children? The Board clearly needs to articulate to the funding body on how technology affects student achievement.

Ms. Ervin stated that there is a need for talking points for the Board.

Re: UPDATE ON MIDDLE SCHOOL REFORM
Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Ms. Jody Leleck, associate superintendent, Office of Curriculum and Instructional Programs; Mr. Donald Kress, chief school performance officer, Office of School Performance; and Mrs. Linda Ferrell, acting director, Middle School Instruction and Achievement. This update will provide information on the status of middle school reform. The goal of this initiative is to meet effectively the diverse needs of middle school students by providing a rigorous and challenging middle school academic program that improves teaching and learning, prepares students for rigorous high school standards, and promotes continuous improvement in all middle schools. The Middle School Reform Initiative addresses four of the Board of Education’s core governance policies: Policy IEB, Middle School Education; Policy IFA, Curriculum; Policy IKA, Grading and Reporting; and Policy IOA, Gifted and Talented Education. It also embraces Policy ABA, Community Involvement; and Policy ABC, Parental Involvement. As the comprehensive plan for middle school reform is developed, the Board will simultaneously review and, as appropriate, revise Policy IEB, Middle School Education.

A Middle School Reform Steering Committee is overseeing the development of the reform plan. It is chaired by two deputy superintendents and the chief operating officer, and includes stakeholder representatives, parents, students, and employee representatives. The Steering Committee identified seven reform elements and established project teams to align with each element. The project teams will research scientifically based practices, benchmark exemplary models, and review and analyze relevant data to formulate and recommend reform strategies and initiatives. There is a specific focus on addressing the achievement gap of African American and Hispanic students, English language learners, students with disabilities, and students affected by poverty.

The development of the middle school comprehensive reform recommendations requires extensive collaboration. Consequently, the project teams also include stakeholders from all of the administrative offices, school-based representatives, the three employee associations, parent and community stakeholders, and students. This paper outlines the reform elements; the charge, tasks, and membership of the Steering Committee and project teams; and the timeline to complete this reform initiative. The proposed middle school reform plan will be presented to the superintendent for recommendation to the Board during the fall of 2006.

Re: DISCUSSION

Dr. Haughey noted the large number of people involved in making recommendations for the reform, but there were only a few parents and students. He asked where the fresh perspective is that will make the change for effective middle schools. Ms. Ferrell replied that there is a lot of research that will identify consultants. Also, nontraditional parent groups need to be included in the discussion. Ms. Leleck stated that the charge to the project teams directs them to schedule focus group discussions. Dr. Haughey was supportive of community members’ input, and there is wisdom in the professional literature.
He was confident that new models and levels of expectations will be introduced into the process.

Ms. Cox thought the approach is well thought out. She cautioned staff to recall the lessons learned from other major initiatives that were implemented. The plan should not be the end product, but also should include implementation, communication, and barriers.

Mrs. Navarro agreed with Dr. Haughey and his observation about membership on the project teams. Under parent and community engagement, she realized that the charge was for review and there was no mention of recommendations and subsequent action. She asked if the strategies for parent engagement and communication will be used systemwide. Mr. Bowers stated that all of the project teams are expected to make recommendations that will come to the steering committee. The plan will be drafted by the steering committee with further input from community groups prior to submission to the superintendent.

Mr. Romero thought high school students should be involved since they had recently experienced middle school. Also, members of the community might be interested in being more involved in working on the plan.

Ms. Ervin said it was clear that the right people were engaged in the process. She noted the global screening in second grade and said there is a need to eliminate institutional barriers.

Mrs. O'Neill thought that Ms. Ferrell is the right choice to lead this reform. Change in Montgomery County is slow, but this reform is urgent. The children who have been a part of the early childhood reform are now in fifth grade, and they are ready for more rigorous instruction in middle school.

Resolved, That action on the appointment of the committee is rescheduled for the business meeting on Monday, October 24, 2005.

Re: UPDATE ON THE WORK OF THE COMMUNICATIONS AND PUBLIC ENGAGEMENT COMMITTEE

Mr. Romero, chair of the Communications and Public Engagement Committee, reported that the committee was charged by the Board to look at the Board Office to determine how that office can best carry out the duties of the Board. Through that work, the policies governing the Board Office and Ombudsman should be reviewed. The Policy and Communications and Public Engagement committees met on November 3, 2005. In that meeting, Ms. Bresler reviewed the statutes, policies, and court decision to determine the Board’s hiring of staff. Ms. Ervin asked for a copy of the report. Mrs. Navarro also asked for a copy of what happened at the meeting prior to this report.

Mr. Romero stated that he asked for comments from staff for his review prior to this meeting, and he wanted to include his commentary. He stated that it will be a priority to get the information to the Board.

Mrs. O’Neill stated that she thought it should come to the full Board since there are rumors in the community. Any changes to a policy will require action by the Board as well as any changes to the Board Office staffing.

Mrs. Navarro noted that even the Board members on the committees were not provided with the information.

Mr. Romero continued that the committee was a work group to review the policies (BNA/BNB) to ascertain if there should be revisions and/or make recommendations. Both committees met to start the process.

Mrs. O’Neill pointed out that Policy BNB is out of date, and there needs to be changes in practice or policy.

RESOLUTION NO. 551-05 Re: APPEALS
On motion of Dr. Haughey and seconded by Mr. Abrams, the following resolution was adopted unanimously by members present:

Resolved, That the Board of Education adopt its Decision and Order in Appeal 2005-30, admission to gifted center, reflective of the following vote: Mr. Abrams, Ms. Cox, Dr. Haughey, Mr. Johnson, Mrs. O'Neill, and Mr. Romero voting to affirm; Ms. Ervin and Mrs. Navarro were absent when this case was adjudicated.

Re: DISCUSSION

Mr. Abrams thought the appeals needed to be read into the record, but he asked for staff to streamline the process, if possible.
