Ms. Cox asked for a staff response to Ms. Gabriel’s testimony about modifications to the lottery system.

Mr. Navarro asked for a response to Ms. Koenick’s comments about United Healthcare, and how her concerns have been addressed.

Re: BOARD/SUPERINTENDENT COMMENTS

Dr. Weast commented on the two new school buildings: Richard Montgomery High School and College Gardens Elementary School.

Nobel Laureate William D. Phillips will speak about the science of cold temperatures to approximately 800 students at Parkland Magnet Middle School for Aerospace Technology in Rockville. The event, which will include live demonstrations, will coincide with the premiere of a two-part national public television science program called "Absolute Zero and the Conquest of Cold."

Mr. Moskowitz wished his peers good luck on their upcoming exams.

Mr. Abrams congratulated Dr. Weast who was named one of this year’s Washingtonians of the Year. He thought it was well deserved.

Ms. Brandman noted a presentation on parent involvement, and the Board spends time thinking about and working on how the system can grow. She commented that Education Week reported that the federal under No Child Left Behind is opening the pilot on the growth model as an alternative for accountability. The MSDE would need to make application for Maryland. She wanted to know if the Board wanted to encourage them to make such an application.

On motion of Ms. Brandman and seconded by Mrs. O’Neill, the following resolution was adopted unanimously by members present:

Resolved, That the Board of Education send a letter to the Maryland State Department of Education encouraging the state to participate in the new growth model testing program offered as part of changes to the No Child Left Behind (NCLB) Act; and be it further

Resolved, That the letter also would reiterate the importance of developing an NCLB testing instrument adapted for ESOL and Special Education students.

Re: BOARD/SUPERINTENDENT COMMENTS

Mrs. O’Neill commented that she and Ms. Brandman had toured Richard Montgomery High School. Also, she noted that January 22 is the deadline to register in order to vote in the primary.

Mr. Barclay commented on a STEP Competition at John F. Kennedy High School, and the ladies need a 2.0 to be eligible to compete. Furthermore, he was concerned when he saw that the county executive to eliminate complementary bus passes for students. Transportation gives opportunities for students to participate in after school programs. Ms. Navarro remarked that this is an example of how interconnected government agencies are in delivering services for children.

2. Provision of services shall in no way compromise or otherwise reduce the effectiveness of educational opportunity for students in this school system.

4. The services may not be construed in any manner whatsoever to subsidize the operation of the non-profit private corporation with tax funds as provided through an annual appropriation. Re: TECHNOLOGY UPDATE
Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Mr. Sherwin Collette, chief technology officer, Office of the Chief Technology Officer; Mr. Erick Lang, associate superintendent, Office of Curriculum and Instructional Programs; Mr. James Virga, Jr., associate superintendent, Office of Organizational Development; Dr. Edgar E. Malker, principal, Montgomery Village Middle School; and Mr. Charles E. Smith, science teacher, Montgomery Village Middle School.

In support of the district’s ongoing efforts to improve teaching and learning, new interactive technology tools are being integrated into instruction to more effectively engage students in the learning process. The innovative student-centered classroom environments use interactive technology to both deliver curriculum and instruction and assess understanding. These interactive technology tools activate problem solving and critical thinking skills and better prepare students for success in the Information Age. To ensure students are prepared for high school, college, and the world of work, the district provides students with a rigorous instructional program focusing on the skills needed to be successful in the 21st century. Such an instructional program includes access to technology and helping students develop skills that enable them to work in teams, solve complex problems, interpret information, communicate effectively, connect learning across disciplines, think critically, and apply knowledge to real-life situations. This update provides information on the innovative 21st century classroom technologies being implemented in the Montgomery County Public Schools (MCPS) and highlights the successful collaboration among all offices and schools to select and apply technology solutions that encourage creativity rather than emphasizing the tools themselves.

Re: DISCUSSION

Mrs. O’Neill noted that technology is very important in the 21st century. It will be a challenge to fund all that is needed and desired. In the meantime, there is TechMod and refreshment of technology. Dr. Weast noted that some of the technology has been combined to get more function with less cost.

Mr. Barclay commented that The technology is only as good as the user. As the school system integrates more technology into the schools, he asked if it feels up more time for teacher to plan and create opportunities for teachers to increase their content knowledge. Dr. Weast agreed that teachers need to be creative and knowledgeable of content.

Ms. Cox appreciated seeing the array of technology available to teachers and students; however, it is still the content knowledge of the teacher that imparts information to students. She asked about the staff development teacher in training in the schools. Staff explained that the training for the schools is one person for each promethean Board plus a five-person core team.

Ms. Cox noted that special education students could engage in learning which bypassed their learning deficits. The staff should be alert to parents requesting technology. Ms. Cox referenced the statement, “For students to succeed in a global economy, staff must look beyond state expectations and standards and prepare students with the necessary skills. Students must be able to work in teams, solve complex problems, interpret information, communicate effectively, connect learning across disciplines, think critically, and apply knowledge to real-life situations.” She asked staff where the system was in curriculum in assessing how well of the skills are developed in students. Staff explained that there has been a lot of work done on the assessments, and the Department of Shared Accountability has reviewed some of the components. Through discussion with business and college partnerships, there has bee an effort to incorporate these pieces into the curriculum. Ms. Cox remarked that if the goal is to equip students for the 21st century and these skills are necessary, the system needs to communicate to their parents how well the students are prepared.

Ms. Brandman stated that the flexibility with the media. The special education community has discussed Universal Design for Learning concept which is being considered at the national level. Has the MCPS team focused on this technology? Staff replied that the digital curriculum has involved special educators on the project team.

Ms. Navarro asked about feedback on the training for technology. Staff replied that professional development has been structure to creates the opportunities for peers learning together and helping each other.

Mr. Barclay thought it would be helpful in the next presentation to discuss how results are tied to individual students and differentiation. However, he was still concerned about writing and the ability of students to communicate effectively. He wanted to know about measuring successful in future presentations and really understanding the investment of technology. The engagement increases, but does performance increase. Since technology is not in all classrooms, what can be transferred to those classes with what has been learned? Staff explained that the promethean boards will be rotated so that all students will have exposure to this technology.

Re: UPDATE ON MCPS/COLLEGE PARTNERSHIPS FOR STUDENTS

Dr. Weast invited the following people to the table: Mr. Erick J. Lang, associate superintendent, Office of Curriculum and Instructional Programs; Dr. Mary Kay Shartle-Galotto, executive vice president of academic and student affairs, Montgomery College; Ms. Elyse Korn, student, Gateway to College at Montgomery College; Ms. Eva Jannotta, student, University of Maryland/Northwood High School; and Dr. Stewart Edelstein, associate vice chancellor for academic affairs, The University Systems of Maryland, and executive director, The Universities at Shady Grove.

Higher education partnerships focus on providing access to college or university education experiences for every student. Since 1999, the Montgomery County Public Schools (MCPS) has significantly expanded these partnerships, affording students additional opportunities to learn about college and career paths, experience college-level instruction and settings, and to learn to view a college education as a realistic option.
Higher education partnerships are aligned with the Board of Education Academic Priorities to “develop, pilot, and expand improvements in secondary content, instruction, and programs that support students’ active engagement in learning” and to “strengthen family-school relationships and continue to expand civic, business, and community partnerships that support improved student achievement.”

Re: DISCUSSION

Ms. Navarro commented that she was pleased with the input of the students since they are the reason for the Board’s work. She was impressed about the self-examination and focus for the future. She was excited about the potential for growth within the partnerships with higher education.

Ms. Cox stated that this represents an effort by the school system to recognize that students are on a developmental continuum and some do not need as much nurturing as others. She asked staff if these students were typical or atypical. What is the data used to improve programs? Mr. Lang replied that there is basic data on grades and drop out rates. MCPS is working with the University of Maryland to evaluate the Northwood Partnership. That evaluation will be a starting point to look at the other programs to determine the best model. Dr. Lacey commented that the system is still in the pilot stage.

Mr. Moskowitz asked what type of college classes are offered to students through the MCPS/College Partnerships. He asked for participation in these classes disaggregated by race, ethnicity, and FARMS rate.

Mrs. O’Neill inquired about the credits accepted by colleges outside the Maryland university system. How do counselors communicate the opportunity for Gateway to College?

Ms. Brandman asked how students are attracted to the Gateway to College. Staff replied there is a threshold of credits and sophomores and earning credits at a rate that will not lead to high school graduation or out of high school.

Ms. Brandman asked how students are identified for the laboratory program at the University of Maryland. Dr. Edelstein replied that they are working with students and reviewing several models on project related activities.
