- Student outcomes shall not be predictable by race or ethnicity.

The continued improvement of teaching and learning in Montgomery County Public Schools (MCPS) is the focus of the school system’s strategic plan, Our Call to Action: Pursuit of Excellence. The overriding effort to improve student achievement across the school system is derived from this focus, so that student achievement is not predictable by race. The target is each child, with individual schools and the school system focusing on raising standards for students at all levels of ability and performance, and, at the same time, closing the gap in student achievement by race and ethnicity and among students challenged by limited English proficiency, disabilities, and poverty. This requires great coordination, collaboration, and alignment of activities among the community and thousands of employees affecting tens of thousands of students. Efforts are made throughout the year to improve the strategic plan, a process that culminates each summer in the annual update. The Seven Keys to College Readiness, a trajectory of high standards, guide school staffs and parents to ensure that all students achieve at high levels. With goals set at advanced rather than proficient standards, the Seven Keys ensure that student achievement is not predictable for any group.
