The Individualized Education Program (IEP) is a framework that helps ensure that the educational needs of each student with a disability are met. The IEP is based on the student's present levels of performance, which are assessed through a variety of means, including standardized tests, teacher observations, and parental input. The IEP includes goals and objectives that are tailored to the student's needs, as well as strategies for achieving those goals. It is a living document that is reviewed and updated annually, and it is designed to be flexible enough to accommodate changes in the student's needs. The IEP is a critical tool for ensuring that students with disabilities have access to a quality education.
