- Welcome to our celebration of Native American Month and National French Week!
- Did you know you can visit over 380,000 art objects at the Louvre? French artists created 66% percent of all art in the Louvre, and it is estimated to take you about 200 days to view all art pieces if you spend 30 seconds viewing each one. That sounds like a lot of days, how about we focus on today for now. Speaking of that, today's national French week activity is Francophone culture trivia during lunch in the media center? Check it out.
- In the continuation of our of Native American History, today we honor the Nottoway Indian Tribe. The Cheroenhaka (Nottoway) Indian Tribe made first contact with the English (Colonials) in 1608-09. The tribe was referred to as Mangoak, or Mengwe, by the Algonquian Tribes. Later in 1650, they were referred to as "Na-da-wa" which reverted to "Nottoway" People At The Fork Of The Stream, by the Colonials. They lodged and hunted in the southeastern part of Virginia along the Nottoway and Blackwater Rivers as far as the Albemarle Sound. That was our moment in Native American History.
- Please email us at nwjagtv@gmail.com or our executive producer Ms. Greenlee. We will be right back after this?
- Tomorrow there will be an Asian American Club meeting held in the auditorium during lunch.
- The media center is holding a fun thanksgiving contest this week. Go visit the media sometime and name the three turkeys on display. The students or staff members with the goofiest or most clever turkey name will win a prize on November 21st.
- Join Noodles & Company-Kentlands in supporting the Northwest Class of 2026 TODAY, from 4:00 pm - 8:00 pm. Simply mention the NW fundraiser to your cashier, or order online through the Noodles & Company app or website and use the offer code: GIVING25 and 25% of qualifying sales will be given back to the NWHS Class of 2026! Let's Go Jags!
- Please join us at 7pm tomorrow for the Powder Puff game at the NWHS Stadium. Hopefully you join us for this spectacular tradition! Tickets will be sold at the gate and are $5.00 each – CASH ONLY! Concessions will be OPEN.

- We have a new club. The Geoclub. They have their first interest meeting tomorrow at lunch in room 214. We explore and learn about different countries/regions, specifically their locations on a map and the (broad) cultures of some of them by playing games + activities, having competitions with rewards, and even just discussing! This is not like a study club where it's strictly about learning, it's a lighthearted club where our goal is to have fun while expanding our knowledge! regardless of how good you are at geography, you are more than welcome!! Come to room 214 @ lunch on Tuesdays and Thursdays.
